[illegible]lar View of the Reform Bill—Pr[illegible] Course of Lord Palmerston—In[illegible] of the Premier—The Prosp[illegible] Peace—London Topics—A New Op[illegible].

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Friday, March 4, 1859.

[illegible] effect produced on parties in Parl[illegible] [illegible], by the promulgation of the [illegible] plan of Reform, is curious. Popular feeling [illegible] there is literally none. To the many [illegible] wears the aspect of a mere sham, and a vague notion prevails that "of course it can come to nothing." But no evidence as yet appears of a disposition to make the slightest exertion to insure its rejection. Radical Committees at Norwich, Edinburgh, Manchester and some other places, have assembled in haste to pass denunciatory resolutions; and in most of the great towns the same thing will be done during the next ten days. But in the absence of any counter project that looks feasible and at the same time worth struggling for, the bulk of the industrial community remains passive, or at all events motionless. The workingmen of the manufacturing districts and the metropolis avow their distrust of BRIGHT, believing, as they do, that his aim is the re-distribution of seats rather than the expansion of electoral privilege, and that if to-morrow he could get more parliamentary power for the cotton lords and mill-ocrats, he would not stickle about surrendering a good deal of what he has asked regarding the extension of the franchise. In this they may do him injustice; but that this is their conviction, almost universally, I have reason to know. Food is cheap, work abundant, the fireside is warm, and the faith of many in political leadership has waxed cold. Hence the absence of excitement and enthusiasm generally; and hence the indecision and uncertainty that, like a thick fog, overspreads everything just now.

This immobility on the part of the public is construed by Ministers to mean satisfaction. It proves, they say, and perhaps think, that the temper of the nation is thoroughly conservative. If the bill expounded by Mr. DISRAELI were really felt to be an insult to the intelligence of the community, and a mockery of their wants, would they not say so? As they do not say so they are content with it; and consequently it will be carried. Besides, there are the Conservative Whigs, who at heart want no change in the representation; and who, though they may grumble, will let the measure slip through as the easiest way of getting rid of the question for some years to come.

All this is very well as after-dinner talk at the Carlton, but there are various intrigues and negotiations going on in other quarters that may spoil the game. Sir JAMES GRAHAM, Mr. SIDNEY HERBERT, Lord JOHN RUSSELL, Mr. MILNER GIBSON, Mr. ROEBUCK, Lord GRANVILLE, Sir CORNEWALL LEWIS, and Mr. BRIGHT, have each and all made up their minds that Lord DERBY'S Reform bill ought to be rejected on the second reading. And so it will be beyond all doubt, if Lord PALMERSTON sincerely joins for that object. He has given out in many quarters that on the question of Reform he does not intend to dispute Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S claim to lead the Liberal Party, and that he is disposed to follow any course which that noble lord may advise. This sounds like prudence and magnanimity, and undoubtedly does give some advantage apparently to his rival. But those who know him well, and who are not to be caught by the mere show of generosity where so much bitterness and jealousy have long been so notoriously felt, interpret the offer to abdicate pro hac vice on Lord PALMERSTON'S part, as simply a dodge to entrap his rival into a position where as a leader he may at the same time be made to fail. The feature of the Tory bill that has provoked the greatest amount of hostility within the walls of Parliament is the transfer of freehold votes from counties to towns. This clause an attempt is now making to get withdrawn; and if it be abandoned at the last moment, little will then remain in the bill but a number of small concessions, for every one of which the Liberals have some time or other voted. They will, therefore, find themselves left without their chief cheval de battaille; and a sufficient number of moderate men will probably abstain from voting to leave the Government in a small majority. Lord PALMERSTON would perhaps vote with the Opposition, but his friends would stay away; and if the manœuvre succeeded, he would have the satisfaction of being able to say that he had let Lord JOHN try his hand at leading the party on his own peculiar question, and that he had not been successful. Such is the suspicion of what is intended. It implies what is called "a cross" between Mr. DISRAELI and Lord PALMERSTON,—but in this there would be nothing new. They have done work of the same kind before now in concert, and they have strong, though different motives, to do so again. Mr. DISRAELI wants to escape defeat; Lord PALMERSTON wants to damage his rival for power; and both want, by letting the bill get through, to stifle the subject of Reform for some time to come. We shall see.

On the other hand, Lord DERBY may not consent easily to eat this last dose of dirt for the sake of retaining office; and even if he would, there may still be in his Cabinet some who will refuse, if asked, to vary essentially the scheme, for the sake of maintaining whose entirety they suffered Messrs. WALPOLE and HENLEY to quit office the other day. It is true that these right honorable seceders have not yet found any following; on the contrary, they are much upbraided by their party in general for abandoning their posts on the eve of the battle. Nevertheless, it will hardly do still further to risk secessions just now. Mr. WALPOLE, though a heavy speaker and timid councillor, was much respected in the House of Commons as a man of punctilious veracity, candor and integrity. No assertion of his on a matter of fact ever was questioned. His demeanor and bearing were always conciliatory; as a man of business he was indefatigable, and as a sincere partisan his presence in the Cabinet was a pledge of some degree of consistency. His successor, Mr. SOTHERON ESTCOURT, has many of the same qualities, but he is, in every point of view, inferior to Mr. WALPOLE. As a Minister ad interim, he may do for a time; but to conduct the business of the Home Department in the House of Commons, he is utterly unequal. More of such change, even though unembittered by personal feuds, would bring the Administration to an end. If, therefore, there be any strong dissent, in the Cabinet, to the rumored modifications of the Reform bill, Lord DERBY will have to take issue on the scheme as it stands. A more inefficient and illusory one it would be impossible to conceive. As a means of strengthening the political power of the Tories, at the expense of the Whigs, it might have some effect in certain places, but as a national measure it is not worth an hour's consideration. It would not change the relative power of great classes in any one particular; it is to the democratic interest simply and merely a balk, but for that very reason it has a chance of eventually becoming law.

The scene on Tuesday evening, in the House of Commons, when Messrs. WALPOLE and HENLEY made their respective statements, accompanied with their retirement from office, was not a little exciting. The asperity of the former, especially when alluding to Mr. DISRAELI and Lord DERBY, is said to have been provoked by one of those reckless sarcasms on the part of the Premier, in which he frequently indulges at the expense of those who differ from him, especially if they have been his intimate friends. He has committed himself in this way upon more than one occasion, and thereby converted into personal and permanent estrangement what was at first but political and temporary alienation. No two men were, for years, so intimate as Lord DERBY and Sir JAMES GRAHAM. They acted in public and took council in private together, and so rarely were they seen apart, that they were constantly caricatured and quizzed as the Gemini. Both were members of Sir ROBERT PEEL'S Cabinet, from which Lord DERBY seceded in 1846 on the Corn Law. So great was the old habit of friendship, however, that Sir JAMES GRAHAM continued daily to visit his ex-colleague, and to tell him how irksome he found his situation had become from the growing irritability and nervousness of PEEL. One day Lord DERBY, when dining at Gullon's Club—a select society composed of distinguished men of opposite parties—thought fit to amuse himself and the company by revealing Sir JAMES' humiliations and discomforts under PEEL, which he described with elaborate mimicry of his discontented friend's peculiar tone. Next day, of course, the baronet was duly informed by some mischievous listener of what had occurred, and from that day all personal intercourse between them has ceased. It was by a similar indiscretion that Lord DERBY piqued Mr. WALPOLE into making the reproachful statement he did the other night. As for the allusion to Mr. DISRAELI of broken faith by the publication of a suggestion made to him in Cabinet confidence respecting the £6 franchise, still greater exasperation must have [illegible] when so mild and forbearing a man could be [illegible] so vividly. As he pointed to the [illegible] of the Exchequer and said he would not [illegible]te, his utterance became choked with a sort of [illegible]ic convulsion, and it was some minutes before he could proceed. The House became [illegible]thetic and excited, and you would have heard a pin drop when Mr. DISRAELI rose to reply. Everybody expected a fearful retort from one so vituperative and vindictive. Mr. HENLEY, however, having risen at the same moment to make his explanation, the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave way. Before the Ex-President of the Board of Trade had concluded a billet was brought into the House and handed to Mr. DISRAELI by Sir WILLIAM JOLLIFFE, (the Ministerial whipper-in,) and instead of again rising when Mr. HENLEY had done, the resentful and moody orator sat still. The little note was known to have come from Lord DERBY, who was sitting under the gallery, and who shrewdly perceived the danger of allowing his lieutenant to enter into recriminations. Next day Lord HENRY LENNOX, by whom the communication complained of had been made to the Press, resigned his office as one of the Lords of the Treasury; and the story goes that he was obliged to do so in order to clear the leader of the Commons from the imputation of treachery to Mr. WALPOLE. Meanwhile Ministers have already been beaten three times within the week on different questions. It is on all hands understood that they are desirous of taking the first excuse to dissolve the present Parliament, and that they are actively making preparations throughout the country for a general election.

The hopes of continued peace between France and Austria are less sanguine than they were a week ago. The armaments on both sides still continue, though they are daily declared to mean nothing. I believe the French are about actually to quit Rome—but how long they will be absent nobody pretends to be able to tell. Mr. GLADSTONE is at Turin, where he purposes spending a few days before his return to England. He will thus be the only politician amongst us who has had opportunities of personal conference at this critical juncture with both Count BUOL and M. CAVOUR. How much the wiser he will be for that I leave you to judge. He returns to England disappointed in the object of his mission to Ionia, by whose representatives all his plans of constitutional change have been unequivocally rejected. I do not believe, however, that in the House of Commons any one of mark will venture to assail him; and his return on the eve of the great struggle of the session is awaited with much anxiety.

Town is very full, and though neither the Palace nor any of the great houses have as yet become the scene of festivities, the West End is all alive with fashion and amusement. The theatres partake of the zest communicated thereby to every species of pleasure, and they are filled nightly almost without exception. The histrionic event of the last week is the return of Mr. and Mrs. WIGAN to the stage, after an interval of three years, during which, in consequence of his ill health, they were unable to play. He told me himself the other evening that he had been solicited by the managers of various houses to accept engagements for the season, and that he had been chiefly led to prefer the Adelphi, where he is now acting, by the superior ventilation and general comfort of the new edifice, which is indeed quite remarkable when compared with most of the other minor theatres. His physicians warned him that he must be very careful for some time, and avoid over-exertion or excessive heat while performing. His reception was one of tumultuous applause, and the manner in which the revived comedy of "Still Waters Run Deep," was produced, left nothing to be desired.

A very clever opera has been performed in private several times recently, which is the production of a very young amateur, Mr. CLAY, the son of the member for Hull. Though not 21 years of age, he is a most accomplished musician—his execution on the violin being the most perfect I have ever heard in one who is not a professed artist. There is a great deal of merit and originality in the piece; and the libretto is the work of Mr. STEPHENSON, who, like Mr. CLAY, is a clerk in the Treasury. All the other male parts are sustained by other official colleagues of the young gentleman I have named; and the spirit with which it has been got up and received by numerous and cultivated audiences, gives one better hopes for the future of music in England. We have plenty of the imported article for which we pay dearly enough, but our native productions, when judged of as art, have too long been sadly below par.

Position of Prussia on the Italian Question.

The Prussian Government has issued a circular dispatch, dated the 12th of February, to its representatives at the different Courts of Germany. It is as follows:

"BERLIN, Feb. 12, 1859.

If the Government of the King, in the present critical state of affairs, has not before explained its views and given instructions to its representatives at the German Courts, it must be attributed to the peculiar nature of the actual political situation.

The peace of Europe appears to be threatened from many points, but it is difficult to say from which. In the East, in Servia, in the Danubian Principalities, there is nothing which cannot be settled by diplomatic measures. The same may be said of Italian affairs.

In the opinion of the Government of the King, the difficulties of the present situation and the dangers of a conflict are to be sought for not so much in the impossibility of settling private questions, as in the counter inclinations (Stimmungen) which have arisen lately between the Cabinets of Vienna and Paris.

Under these serious circumstances we did not hesitate for one moment to recognize the duties of our position. Acting upon the wish to maintain the faith of treaties, their bearing upon the present state of things, consequently upon the peace of Europe, we have exerted all our efforts at Paris, as well as at Vienna, to point out the incalculable dangers that would result from a conflict, and in both quarters we have made the most pressing appeals for peace and moderation.

However, we did not deceive ourselves as to the conditions on which such a line of action might hope to be crowned with success. As it was our intention to act in the sense indicated with all our power upon the two Cabinets at controversy, it was also necessary to maintain an independent position towards both.

As a member of the Confederation, we shall never fail in fulfilling our duties towards it as prescribed by its fundamental regulations; but we cannot go beyond that, nor do we think that the present political situation would warrant us in doing so, nor favor the accomplishment of the task imposed upon us, as regards the present state of affairs, as a European Power.

The uncertainty which, as far as can be seen from recent indications, seem to belong to the present situation of affairs, induces us to adhere still more closely to the position we have taken up. If, as now appears probable, negotiations are set on foot concerning Italian affairs, the neutral position which we have so carefully maintained will be of the greatest value in enabling us to give counsel to both sides, and will give weight to our representations.

We have also much satisfaction in the belief that the free position which we have succeeded in retaining is one which we share with the British Cabinet, and that the efforts we have been making to preserve peace and remove misunderstandings are being also made by that Power. In the coöperation of Russia, too, which we have secured, we see another guarantee for the successful result of our policy.

Such are, in their essential substance, the points of view which have hitherto acted as our guide, and which, as yet, we resolve to adhere to. By so doing, we believe we are doing good service to the common cause—the cause of peace and the maintenance of the existing state of things,—a maintenance which we ourselves desire as well as our German allies. By this line of action we believe that we do better service to that cause than by manifestations and measures which, in our opinion, would neither respond to the object in view nor the character of the present state of affairs, but would rather contribute to excite animosity and add fuel to the flames.

I authorize your Excellency to read this dispatch to the Government to which you are accredited.

DE SCHLEINITZ."

Position of Bavaria—Open Hostility to France.

BAVARIA.

The following declaration on the part of thirty-nine members of the Legislative Assembly of Wurtemberg has been addressed to the Select Committee, in order to be laid before Government:

"The whole of Germany is penetrated by one sentiment—that of profound indignation at the attempt that is now made of disturbing the peace of Europe. Nobody, in beholding the enormous armaments now going on in France, is to be deceived respecting the dangers that threaten us. France, it is true, accompanies these warlike demonstrations by assurances of her peaceful intentions; yet the fact of her preparations for war going on increasingly is incompatible with these professions.

On the other hand, nobody is so silly as to believe that these armaments are made in the interest of liberty, or for the cause of oppressed nationalities. The constant object of the founder of the Napoleonic dynasty was the destruction of foreign nationalities—the spreading of unutterable woe and misery in those countries submitted to his intolerable despotism—the founding of vassal States, afterwards to be distributed among the members of his own family, regardless of the streams of blood shed in the pursuit of his wicked and ambitious designs. This state of things only ceased when Europe combined, and by one common effort hurled the oppressor forever from his throne.

To attack alternately the various States of Europe, and principally Germany—to burden it with intolerable contributions—to destroy peaceful homes, commerce and industry—to draw from it its life blood—to set Germans against Germans for his own selfish designs—to wrest from Germany one piece after another to incorporate it into his Empire—these were the constant acts of that NAPOLEON I. whose glorification has now become the order of the day in Paris. We should indeed have forgotten the history of blood, and of unspeakable misery, were we to shut our eyes to the dangers threatening us now. Austria is the most powerful State in Germany; it is her greatest, her most urgent interest to be at peace; she can therefore not have any aggressive policy. She has shown this by the calm and dignified demeanor evinced on every occasion, in spite of the provoking and insulting conduct of France. At the same time, endeavors are made to separate Prussia and Austria, by spreading the rumor that exclusively Italian interests are at stake.

We know perfectly well the intentions of France with regard to the Rhenish provinces. We also know perfectly well the old game of separating Austria from the rest of Germany, and then, when the former by sacrifice in blood and treasure lies prostrate and exhausted, to attack the other States of Germany, and strike them down one after another.

Bitter experiences, bloody reminiscences, have taught Germany to be on her guard, and energetically to oppose the repetition of such scenes. But independently of these considerations, a war between France and Austria would likewise threaten the States of the German Confederacy, for it would threaten the territories along the German Alps and the German coasts on the Adriatic.

But in what position do we find Germany under these circumstances?

Whilst Austria, with a promptitude and energy beyond praise, collects her troops along the whole extent of her frontiers, and meets the provocations of France by the most formidable armaments, the German Diet looks on in silence and apathy.

Is this the way to give effect to the diplomatic negotiations?

And if, as we fear, the pacific declarations of NAPOLEON are only made with a view of lulling Europe into sleep, until France finds herself sufficiently prepared for the struggle, where shall we find our matériel and our armies to meet the danger? No German sincerely attached to his native land can behold this state of things, for which we must seek the only cause in the utter absence of national unity, without the deepest grief. Woe to those who have been instrumental in bringing about such a state! But let us sink at this critical moment all minor considerations, and only think of meeting manfully the dangers which threaten our common Fatherland. Let us rise like one man to meet the aggressor. We know we are speaking in the name of millions when we express to the Committee our earnest hope that the different German Governments will take immediate and energetic steps for the protection of Germany.

The Objects of Lord Cowley's Mission to Vienna.

Correspondence of the London Times.

TURIN, Monday, Feb. 28, 1859.

I am able to state that Lord COWLEY, should he succeed in getting England's and Prussia's mediation accepted, was to inform Count BUOL, in a semi-official way, of the basis on which England is prepared to assist in establishing peace. In the first place, then, as regards the Papal States, Austria is to join France in requesting Pio Nono to accept the reforms as traced out in the memorial presented by Count Cavour at the time of the Congress of Paris; in the second place, the separate treaties concluded by her with the Italian Governments, and which are derogatory to their sovereignty and independence, are to be considered null and void; thirdly, liberal Governments are to be formed in each Italian province upon the bases of the statutes promulgated in 1848; and fourthly, Austria is to grant to Lombardy and Venice a Government largely infused with the representative element, and almost independent, under the Archduke MAXIMILIAN, to be created Viceroy.

These demands are certainly substantial, and yet the liberty of Lombardo-Venetia, with its quasi-independence, though still an Austrian province, contains that which in logic is called a vicious circle.

Be all this as it may, my conviction is that Austria will refuse the whole in a lump. It can hardly be thought a casual coincidence that she should dispatch two fresh military divisions to Italy on the very day that Lord COWLEY arrived at Vienna.

The Cause of Mr. Walpole's Retirement from the Cabinet.

The following letter to Lord DERBY explains the reason of Mr. WALPOLE'S withdrawal from the Cabinet:

"JAN. 27, 1859.

"MY DEAR LORD: I regret to say that I am about to take the most painful step which I have ever had to take in the whole of my life. I am going to request you to place my resignation in her Majesty's hands, because I find it is utterly impossible for me to sanction or countenance the course of policy which the Government are now determined to adopt on the important subject of parliamentary reform. When you were so good as to ask me to join your present administration, I told you I thought I had better decline. I then foresaw that there were one or two questions with reference to which I might not be able to agree with my colleagues. On being assured, however, that, if that should happen, there would be nothing dishonorable to you or to them in asking leave to retire, I consented again to bear my part in the arduous task which the Queen was pleased to invite you to undertake. Parliamentary reform was one of those questions; and it is now quite clear that I cannot come to an agreement with the majority of the Cabinet. The reduction of the county occupation franchise to a level with that which exists in boroughs is utterly contrary to every principle which the conservatives as a party have always maintained. [Hear.] It is a complete destruction of the main distinction which has hitherto been recognized and wisely established between the borough and the county constituencies. It is to my mind a most dangerous innovation, by giving to temporary and fluctuating occupations a preponderating influence over property and intelligence, while it throws large masses into the constituencies who are also exempt from direct taxation, and therefore interested in forcing their representatives to fix that taxation permanently on others. I will not dwell upon other points, for this is enough. But I cannot help saying that the measure which the Cabinet are prepared to recommend is one which we should all of us have strongly opposed if either Lord PALMERSTON or Lord JOHN RUSSELL had ventured to bring it forward. [Laughter and Opposition cheers.] Under all these circumstances, I have no other alternative but to repeat the request with which I commenced; and I shall, therefore, consider myself as holding the seals of office until you can conveniently fill up my place. I am ever, my dear lord, sincerely yours,

S. H. WALPOLE.

Recognition of Civil Service by the Government.

From the London News.

The formal announcement contained in the last Gazette of the honor conferred on Mr. CUNARD and Sir CHARLES NICHOLSON will be received by the public with universal satisfaction, and for more reasons than one. It is not only that these gentlemen have well deserved the dignity of the Baronetcies to which they are advanced, but the promotions themselves indicate a welcome improvement on the traditions of former days. Neither Sir CHARLES NICHOLSON nor Mr. CUNARD has earned his elevation by mere political services; still less are they indebted for the result to favor or intrigue. They have not even won their honors in the field of war, but have established their claims to public gratitude exclusively by works of peace. It is to Mr. CUNARD, more than to any other man, that we owe the route across the Atlantic, which has so closely connected the two worlds together as to leave no room for more complete approximation, save through the agency of electricity itself. The testimonial with which the American people honored their own representative in this enterprise formed one of the most brilliant marvels in our great Exhibition, and less was certainly not due to the champion who remained in possession of the field. In the elevation of Sir CHARLES NICHOLSON we see the just reward of patriotic service in a British Colony, and no Englishman can desire anything better than that these well-merited distinctions should excite others to deserve similar rewards.

The Nicaragua Canal—A New Rival to our California Steamships.

From the French Official Moniteur.

A transit contract, by the Isthmus of Nicaragua, has just been signed by M. THOME DE GAMOND, in the name of the Committee having the concession of the Nicaragua Canal, and Sir RODNEY CROSKEY. The object of this transit service is, while waiting for the completion of the canal, to immediately connect together the lines of steamers which a powerful Anglo-American Company is about to establish on the two oceans, under the name of Oceanic Packets. Two of these lines will cross the Atlantic; one starting from Halifax, and touching at New-York, will run to Grey Town; the other, leaving Southampton, will unite Europe to Nicaragua. Two other lines will traverse the Pacific, one running from Salinas Bay to the English possessions of Vancouver, touching at San Francisco, and the other from Salinas Bay to Australia by the Marquesas. These four lines have been adopted, and will employ twelve steamers. A fifth line is in contemplation—from Salinas Bay to Shanghae by the Sandwich Islands, having for object to introduce Chinese emigrants to the Antilles, by the transit of Nicaragua. The Oceanic Company undertakes to make the passage from Southampton to Nicaragua in sixteen days.

Southampton Correspondence of the Paris Presse.

I announced to you in my last the departure of a first company of engineers, of master workmen, and laborers of every description for Nicaragua, under the conduct of M. FELIX BELLY.

It was through mistake I told you that Prince CAMILLE DE POLIGNAC was intrusted with the military defence of the Nicaragua Canal. There had been at one time some thought of placing at the disposal of M. Belly some indigenous troops to protect the workmen; but the present state of Central America, which enjoys the profoundest peace, and the effective protection of England in that quarter, renders all precautions of the sort, to say the least useless. The mission of Prince POLIGNAC is, therefore, confined to preserving good order among the throng of laborers who are about to take part in the enterprise. A second company will depart on March 2.

In connection with the new lines of steamers just inaugurated a temporary railroad across the Isthmus will assure promptitude and facility in transportation. It will be so constructed as to admit of the movement of trains of two hundred tons burden.

From the Editorial columns of the Presse.

The Organic Committee, which has formed about M. FELIX BELLY, after having eliminated the lower financial elements which impeded its origin, without making any appeal to the public, without the aid of any financial power, and by the mere assistance of private and confidential contributions, have been able to disburse some millions for the first preparatory movements of this vast enterprise.

A final sanction of the public authorities was wanting to the Belly Treaty. It was its ratification by the two Congresses of Costa Rica and Nicaragua, delayed on account of the difficulty of convoking these bodies during the rainy season. The ratification of the Costa Rican Congress was obtained Dec. 16, and that of the Nicaraguan Congress Jan. 3.

As soon as the Organic Committee was officially apprized of this last legal sanction of the Belly Treaty, it hastened to dispatch to its American possessions a preliminary convoy of forty persons, under the leadership of M. FELIX BELLY himself. This convoy, which left Southampton upon the Parana, Feb. 17, was composed of the engineers whom the Ministers of Public Works and of Instruction, at the request of the Hon. ELIE DE BEAUMONT, one of the patrons of the enterprise, had placed at the service of the company. A second company, composed of other engineers for the survey of the canal, left Paris this morning, (Feb. 28,) to embark at Southampton, March 2, on the La Plata. A third, much larger than the others, will leave, we are told, March 17.

The most hearty sympathy for the enterprise has been exhibited on the other side of the channel. This may be because of a decided superiority among our neighbors for trans-oceanic enterprises, or because of the energetic and decidedly protective attitude assumed by the English Government in the matter of a Nicaragua Canal. It is well known that upon the news of the Convention of Rivas, the Queen of England hastened to send Sir WILLIAM OUSELEY to Nicaragua to protect the work so happily commenced by our countrymen. We have seen in the firm and becoming language of Sir WILLIAM OUSELEY how England proposes to take under her powerful protection the neutrality of the interoceanic canal. The fact explains why the organic committee, entirely French in origin, and which had long ago legalized the statutes of an anonymous company, in the presence of M. DUCLOUX, Notary in Paris, has gradually permitted the enterprise to pass into the hands of the English, who have taken it home, and are about to fix it at London under the empire of British legislation.

But France will nevertheless retain all the sympathy it has vouchsafed to M. FELIX BELLY, as to one of the most eminent and candid intelligences of the epoch; and she will watch with lively interest the accomplishment of the great designs which that remarkable man has devised for the regeneration of Central America.

AFFAIRS OF HAYTI.

A Defence of the Ex-Emperor—Letter from Chevalier Raybaud.

To the Editor of the Paris Presse:

There are persons in a position to be better informed who pretend that the revolution which has been effected in Hayti was encouraged by foreign influence. Without pausing to examine such an opinion, the truth or falsity of which is of little moment, I would remark with them that the fall of the Emperor SOULOUQUE, in exciting against him—as always happens in such cases—a concert of maledictions more or less deserved, has in no sense impaired the reputation for courage which that old man of seventy-four really possesses, and that his act of abdication is matchless in dignity and simplicity.

Amid the swelling chorus of wrongs and crimes with which he has been charged, the Journal du Havre, upon the faith of one of its correspondents, accuses him with having simply stolen a fifth of the entire coffee of the island. But it has omitted a circumstance sufficiently important to deserve mention, that it was out of this fifth (less by 25 per cent. than the number indicated by the Journal) he paid, in nine years, 25,000,000 of francs upon the French debt, the liquidation of which, after many vicissitudes, had been long given up at the moment of his accession to power. He, therefore, rendered his country not only the signal service of relieving it from one-half of this weighty obligation, but of acquiring for it the repute of honesty, and of satisfying it that it could and ought to pay, without degrading itself by imploring further abatements and postponements. He has done it by creating this resource of a fifth, the realization of which inflicted no injury upon foreign commerce, affected in no particular the prosperity of the country, which, by a singular coincidence, has never ceased to advance since that era, notwithstanding the vices ascribed to his administration.

The public has therefore seen with surprise, and the two or three thousand French families who, since 1850, have been living upon the regularity of the Emperor SOLOUQUE in his payments, have seen with alarm, that the suppression of the fifth has been announced as the first measure to be taken in the programme of Gen. GEFFRARD when he raised the standard of revolt against the late Government. Nevertheless, although it was not understood how, out of a budget reduced to four or five millions, as it was before the elevation of SOULOUQUE, it would be possible to spare three millions, which belonged of right to the liquidation of the double debt of France, I have a perfect conviction that this alarm will soon cease; the honorable character and elevated sentiments of the President of the new Haytian Republic admitting of no doubt in the matter.

The civil list made or assented to for the Emperor SOULOUQUE, by the Haytian Chambers, was one million of francs—a sum certainly enormous, measured by the resources of the country, especially when we consider the simplicity of his habits, which could not permit him to spend one tenth of the sum. He has thus been able to save nine hundred thousand—but not to buy up all the sugar plantations of the country, as the article of the Journal du Havre reproaches him, since it would be necessary, in the first place, for such sugar plantations to have existence. The moment is not, however, opportune for judging him without partiality, or to expose the exaggerations in regard to him; but hereafter to do this will be a task of interest, and also to inquire whether the Government of men of color, which lasted more than forty years, has been more favorable than his to the prosperity of the country, especially to its moral and intellectual development, and whether he has done more or less than they to encourage among the people a stupid and malignant distrust of the whites, and particularly of the French. In the meantime we state this simple fact that the number of young Haytians resorting to France to seek the benefits of education has increased more than tenfold under his reign; and that they have secured here splendid triumphs; and if this circumstance is questionable, as a direct argument, it must at least be a proof of the general wellbeing produced by the ten last years of tranquility, and of the sum of benefits he has diffused, let their source be what it may; and that he has done still better in inviting and maintaining at Port-au-Prince, French professors of both sexes to furnish instruction to the class whose means forbid them from seeking it abroad.

Called to power without previously dreaming of the honor, so far superior in the acquired qualities indispensable to its exercise over those who were contending for it, he has committed the crime of taking his position au serieux, and of not wishing to be precipitated from it the very first year by the very men who had placed him there, in the avowed aim of giving, by his color, satisfaction to seven-eighths of the population; but, above all, in the hope, cruelly disappointed, of governing through his presumed ignorance and weakness, which his previous habits had seemed to indicate. They should then bear their share of the responsibility for this unexpected choice, made at the time to the prejudice of Gen. GEFFRARD, the most popular man of the country, to whom some of the consequences of the act should perhaps be fairly ascribed.

REVOLUTIONARY SYMPTOMS—UNPOPULARITY OF GEN. CASTRO—GENERAL AMNESTY PROCLAIMED —A NEW CABINET—DR. ACOSTA APPOINTED MINISTER TO THE UNITED STATES.

Our advices from Caracas extend to March 5.

The country was in a disquieted condition; revolutionary movements on foot in every direction, insomuch that the Executive had invested President CASTRO with extraordinary powers, and suspended the guarantees of the Constitution. The source of these troubles was the extreme unpopularity of certain measures of Gen. CASTRO, involving heavy imposts upon trade and industry, and a refusal to pay undeniable claims upon the treasury. The agents of MONAGAS were of course busy in fanning the flame of discontent.

On the 1st inst., an insurrection broke out at Caracas, but the activity of Gen. CASTRO, with a large body of troops, promptly suppressed it.

The Executive, on the 26th ult., published a general amnesty, including all offenders, actual and former, ex-President MONAGAS only excepted. This measure had led to the retirement of the whole Cabinet. It was at once replaced by the following gentlemen:

Secretary of the Interior—RAFAEL ARVELO.
Secretary of Foreign Affairs—Gen. C. SOUBLETTE.
Secretary of Finance—P. P. DE LAS CASAS.
Secretary of War—L. D. CORREA, pro tem.

Dr. ELISEO ACOSTA, for so many years an esteemed resident and practicing physician in New-York, has been appointed Minister to the United States.

The President has given great offence by removing Don RAFAEL ACEVIDO, a member of the Court of Accounts, in disregard of the Constitution. The other members of the Court had at once tendered their resignations.

Cape of Good Hope.

THE COLONIAL ELECTION—BURNS CELEBRATION—THE SMALL POX—INVALIDS FROM INDIA.

By the arrival of the bark Fleet Eagle at Boston, we have advices from the Cape of Good Hope to Jan 25.

An election was going on throughout the colony for members of the Legislature, with some excitement, but no breaches of the peace.

A grand celebration of the Centenary Birth Day of ROBERT BURNS was announced to take place at Cape Town on the 25th.

The small pox, which had carried off several thousand victims, had nearly disappeared.

A schooner, named the Prince Edward, intended for a guano expedition, had sailed away in a mysterious manner, leaving the owner and master behind, and carrying off several female passengers. A steamer had gone in pursuit.

Invalid officers and soldiers from the English Army in India continue to reach the Cape. One vessel brought nearly two hundred.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Extra Session Question Still Undecided—The Trial of Mr. Sickles—The Indian Treaties, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 20.

The Extra Session question is still undecided, though it will be settled to-morrow in time to telegraph for the California steamer. The President has been outvoted by the Cabinet, and begins to wane in his determination. I learn from a reliable source that the chances are now against a call for an Extra Session.

No indictment has yet been sent in against Mr. SICKLES. It will no doubt be returned into Court to-morrow, when Mr. SICKLES' counsel will insist on a trial. It is understood that the District-Attorney will agree for the trial to be set for to-morrow week, which will no doubt be the time fixed. I learn that ex-Senator BADGER, of North Carolina, is advising with the prosecution, but will not probably appear in the case before the Court. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Saturday, March 19.

There is much reserve in official quarters as to the extra session question, and no satisfactory response has thus far been elicited. But to-night there is reason to believe that it is held in abeyance for the present, liable to be taken up at a future period. There is a subject pending which probably induces the indecision, namely: Whether the mail service can be carried on by certificates, instead of cash, until Congress shall make the necessary appropriations. It is a generally accredited fact that all the members of the Cabinet are against an extra session. The compensation of Postmasters, and the contingent expenses of their offices, amount to two millions per quarter, or equal to the revenue, leaving nothing for the mail services. It has been estimated that the service which is absolutely necessary to be performed will require about twice as much as the entire receipts, to say nothing of the present indebtedness. The next contracts for the Southern States are to be made, and, in view of the bankrupt condition of the Department, it is reasonably supposed the proposals will be far less favorable than though the contractors were to frame their proposals on a cash basis.

All the special mail agencies, seventeen in number, have been discontinued, and the order granting extra compensation out of the postage, affecting about 80 Postmasters, has been revoked, owing to the failure of Congress to make the necessary appropriations. It is not true, as published, that the Postmaster-General has threatened to resign his office unless there shall be an extra session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 20.

Official information will go out in to-morrow's Pacific mail of the ratification of the ten treaties with the Indians in Oregon and Washington. As this took place during the late extraordinary session of the Senate, after Congress had adjourned, no appropriation could be made to carry them into immediate effect. It was mainly owing to explanations of General LANE that these treaties were ratified, that gentleman having convinced his brother Senators that they would tend to permanent peace. He had the effective support of Senator GWIN and Ex-Governor STEVENS in his persevering efforts. By these treaties the title to fifty millions of acres of land will be extinguished, at a cost to the Government of three and a half cents per acre. On that occasion a resolution was passed, almost unanimously, providing that, hereafter, when it is proposed to buy Indian lands, the Senate shall first be consulted before entering into treaty stipulations.

Should it be found impracticable to make arrangements by which the mail service can be performed by means of certificates, and should it be decided between now and the 26th instant to call an extra session of Congress, a telegraphic dispatch on that day to New-Orleans could be forwarded by way of Tehuantepec, in the steamer of the 27th from that port, to intercept at Acapulco the mail which will leave New-York for the Pacific to-morrow.

Señor MATA, the Minister of the Juarez Government, left Washington to-day on his return to Vera Cruz, by way of New-Oleans.

The Union, of to-day, contains another article of two columns length from Mr. GILLETT, to show that the revenues of the Post-office Department can be applied to the service without special appropriation by law.

Gen. LANE will return to Oregon by the steamer of April 5.

The Spring Freshets.

RISE IN THE HUDSON—OBSTRUCTION TO RAILROAD TRAVEL, ETC.

ALBANY, Sunday, March 20.

The New-York boats did not arrive this morning until 9 o'clock, on account of the heavy gale on the river. The steamer Oregon brought up the Hudson River Railroad passengers from Rhinebeck. The water is six feet over the dock, but is now receding. Twenty miles or more of the Hudson River Railroad track is under water, but it is impossible to tell whether any has been washed away until the water falls. No trains will be sent out until the road is well examined.

FRESHET IN THE PENOBSCOT RIVER.

BANGOR, Sunday, March 20—8 P. M.

The freshet in the Penobscot has reached its highest point to-day, as it is supposed, the cold turn in the weather having checked the melting of the snow. The ice below Oldtown came down yesterday and to-day, forming an immense jam of about two miles in length, which is now opposite this city. It moved down at 11 o'clock to-day, the head of it stopping near the steamboat wharf. The water then rose five or six feet in fifteen minutes, flowing two feet over the wharves. It then fell off four feet in the course of the afternoon, but another and higher flood is feared to night, for which the merchants are preparing by moving their goods.

THE CAMDEN AND AMBOY RAILROAD TRACK WASHED AWAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Saturday, March 19.

The track of the Camden and Amboy Railroad, near Florence, is washed away. The passengers by the 2 o'clock train from New-York returned to Trenton, and arrived here this evening. The travel on the Camden and Amboy road will be suspended for a day or two, in consequence of the injury to the track.

Man Missing from Easton, Pa.

EASTON, Sunday, March 20.

Mr. SAMUEL YEAGER, a prominent and highly respectable merchant of this place, left here last Monday for New-York, intending to return the next day. He has been traced to the City Hotel, Newark, and left there at about 2 o'clock Monday for New-York. Nothing has been heard or seen of him since. He had considerable money with him, and fears are entertained that he has been foully dealt with. He is about 38 years of age, five feet 10 inches high, has dark hair mixed with gray, grayish eyes, a bunch of warts under the left side of his chin. He had on a black cloth frock coat, grayish pants and a felt hat.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, March 19.

The New-Mexican mail of the 1st inst. reached Independence this evening. The news is unimportant. Mr. ALLISON arrived at Independence yesterday, from Pike's Peak, and reports the story of gold being there as a humbug. He says "there is no money there, and no probability of there being any."

Dreadful Railroad Accident.

Several Persons Killed and Injured on the Great Western Railroad.

DETROIT, Saturday, March 19.

The express train on the Great Western Railway ran off the track near Hamilton last night, demolishing the cars and killing four or five persons, including the engineer, and wounding several others. But few particulars have as yet been learned.

ALBANY, Sunday, March 20.

The accident on the Great Western Road happened between Flamboro and Dundas. The storm had washed away the bank, and the engine ran into a chasm nearly twenty feet deep, with the baggage car and two passenger cars. The scene is represented as more horrible than that at Desjardin's Bridge. A terrific storm was prevaling, and the water was washing over the mountain, and there was great difficulty in succoring the wounded or extricating the dead. The cars were a perfect mass of wreck, and the locomotive was completely buried in the soil. The night freight train passed over the spot in safety half an hour before the accident happened. The baggage car fell above and on the locomotive, the first passenger car ran aslant upon this, the second passenger car slid under, and upturned the edge of the first, and the third running into this, had its corner carried away.

Those killed, as far as ascertained, are as follows:

Jones Boyer, of Chicago, Ill.
Alexander Braid, of Hamilton, C. W.
G. Morgan, engineman.
W. Milne, brakeman.
Two names not reported.

The following are reported wounded, some of them seriously:

Henry Post, of Buffalo, N. Y.
W. W. Smith, of Kalamazoo, Mich.
F. D. Adams, wife and children.
E. D. Bryant, of Pontiac, Mich.
Thomas Sackett, of Livingston Co., N. Y.
G. H. Smith, of Livingston Co., N. Y.
Adam Wilson, of Hamilton, C. W.
Hiram Cook, of Cleveland, Ohio.
Columbus Desser, of Detroit, Mich.

There were others injured, whose names are not reported.

Several breaks are reported on the road, as also on the Toronto line.

AN ENGINEER AND FIREMAN KILLED.

Later from Honduras.

APPREHENSIONS OF WALKER'S RETURN—DEATH OF A BOSTON SHIPMASTER.

The bark Carib, Captain HOPKINS, arrived at Boston on Thursday evening, with advices from Truxillo to March 5.

The country was quiet, but the people are still apprehensive of a sudden descent of the great Fillibuster Chief, and the first question asked upon the arrival of an American vessel is: "What is General WALKER about?" The trade of the country is stagnant, the enjoyment of peace bringing no increase of business.

"We regret," says the Boston Journal, "to learn by this arrival of the death at Truxillo of Captain FRANCIS F. NICKERSON, of this city, a brother of Mr. FREDERICK NICKERSON, of the firm of NICKERSON & Co. Captain NICKERSON, for a long period, was in command of the Helen Jane, and other vessels belonging to his brother's firm, trading between this city and Honduras. He was an excellent shipmaster and a man of great intelligence and worth.

We learn by a passenger by the Carib that General WALKER has undoubtedly a considerable number of friends among the Liberal Party of the Interior of Central America, who await his arrival. It is the supposition in Omoa that his intention, in his attempt with the Susan, was to capture Omoa, and hold it until a sufficient number of his men had arrived to enable him to march to the interior."

Life Insurance vs. Savings Banks.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have read an article in the NEW-YORK TIMES on the above subject, and, judging from the management of several of the Life Insurance Companies of this City, there is really no such thing as "Life Insurance." For instance, a man in fair circumstances with every prospect of success before him, takes out one of these peculiar policies, with the fact staring him in the face that, unless the premium is annually or quarterly paid, as the case may be, the whole sum for whatever number of past years is paid is hopelessly forfeited!

We know of a party in this City who insured his life on a policy for $5,000, for the benefit of some of his creditors, and after paying from year to year, from gains he could not spare, he found that his change of circumstances for the worse would not allow him to pay his premium according to the arbitrary rules of the Company, and he was consequently the loser of from $500 to $700, for premiums already paid in. We say arbitrary, although the adventurer knows that the whole is a species of lottery, and that at the start he submits quietly to the terms imposed by the rules and regulations of the Company, although he may be taken in while young and inexperienced!

In consideration of these facts, how much better it would be, if a party has $100 or $250 to spare during the year, to place it in good, safe hands, or in some respectable Savings Bank. The party then gets his interest at five, six or seven per cent., and the fund accumulates, and there is consequently no FORFEIT; and if the party becomes poor, and is unable to make his regular deposit or pay his premium, the accumulated fund is in safe hands, and he can draw for it in case of need.

This is the great advantage the Savings Fund has over Life Insurance. I have had much to do with both, and I believe the Savings Bank more honest, and less of a lottery! Yours, W.

BAY STATE TEMPERANCE.—Under the operation of their Temperance Law, the people of Massachusetts have become critical respecting their drink, systematically rejecting all liquors suspected of adulteration or impurity. And, in order to secure a regular supply of really good whisky and gin, they have a State Agent who furnishes the whole Commonwealth. There are subordinate agencies in the several towns, for the convenience of general distribution. One of these, located in Georgetown, has recently made itself troublesome. The local agent of that town took it into his head to complain of the liquors furnished from head-quarters. He sent specimens to "a distinguished chemist" in his neighborhood, who pronounced them "impure, noxious and dangerous." As this was a reflection upon the State Agency, the Boston papers have taken the case up, and publish certificates from Dr. JACKSON, the State Assayer, which thoroughly put down and completely extinguish the Georgetown grumbler. The "Old Bourbon," according to Dr. JACKSON, was "a good whisky, with the proper flavor, not adulterated, and containing 45 per cent. of absolute alcohol." So likewise of the "Honeysuckle Gin." What would the Georgetown agent have! True he is said to be "an enemy of the Temperance Law." But what a depraved creature, to cherish hostility to a law which gives the people such "Old Bourbon Whisky," and "Honeysuckle Gin."

HOTELS FULL OF TRAVELERS IN PURSUIT OF HEALTH AND PLEASURE—ANCIENT AND MODERN HISTORY OF THE STATE—RENEWAL OF THE SEMINOLE WAR—RAILROADS—REOPENING OF THE SLAVE-TRADE.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Saturday, March 5, 1859.

Your correspondent proposes to furnish your readers with a rambling discourse about matters and things in general in this region of flowers and balmy breezes, of swamps and everglades, piney woods and orange groves, plantations and saw-mills. This old town, once the largest in the United States, for during the period of nearly fifty years, it was the only European settlement within the limits of what is now known as the great Republic; this old town is now full of invalids and others from the North, seeking health and pleasure. Various other points on the St. Johns, the river of lakes, are also crowded to overflowing with the same class.

Those of weak constitutions and diseased lungs are certainly benefited by a sojourn in this locality, and though there is nothing of activity and bustle, or city amusements, there are the delightful out-door pleasures of riding, sailing, fishing, and hunting, and occasionally a highly agreeable hotel "hop." Besides, there is a historical interest pertaining to this country which is both profitable and interesting to study. Those who come here will see the land discovered early in the Sixteenth Century by the Spaniards, and over which the romantic and dreamy PONCE DE LEON wandered in search of a river, a sip of the waters of which would make the old young again. They will learn how he did not find said river; how the French Huguenots attempted to take possession of the country, and how they were cruelly exterminated by the Spaniards, who, in 1564, settled at St. Augustin. Subsequently the place came into the possession of the English, and was transferred back to Spain, who in 1821, sold Florida to the United States for five millions of dollars. It will be found, that while the Spanish soldiers and adventurers were extending the Kingdom of Spain in those ancient daps, the Jesuit Fathers were busy baptizing Indians and enlarging their spiritual kingdom. Thus much for the ancient history of the country. Its modern history, comprising the period since it came into the possession of the United States, and relating mainly to the Seminole Indian war of twenty-five years duration, would, if fairly written out, make Americans blush with shame. The stupidity and cruelty manifested by our Government in its dealing with the Indians, are in a moral point of view, running up a fearful account against us as a nation.

The meanest Indian on the continent knows that there is not the first principle of humanity or philanthropy in our system of dealing with him. The Indian knows as well as the bawling demagogue in Congress, that he is cheated out of his lands by political gamblers, turned off with a few dollars and gew-gaws and left a prey to the big contractor as well as the thieving, petty whisky trader,—to be swept from the earth at last by fire-water and syphilis, petty feuds and wholesale butcheries.

The Seminole war is not yet at an end. About a year ago the volunteer forces of the State had the last of this nation cornered, and the best of terms could then have been made. As usual, probably from fear that the volunteers would get some credit, a United States official suddenly appears upon the scene, orders the volunteers to cease operations, disbands them, and then undertakes to treat with the Indians. The consequence was much trouble, the capturing of a portion only, and the renewal of hostilities at this time. The number taken at that time, some seventy, were shipped off West a few months ago. How many now remain no one knows. The news has just come in that a Government Surveying party, at work in the southern part of the Peninsula, encountered a band of Indians who told the aforesaid United States officials to discontinue their operations and leave the country. They did so and came in with the above report. The number of these Indians is stated to be exactly twenty-one. But it is said there are plenty more in the hummock.

Admitting the estimated number of twenty-one to be correct, a very accurate statement of future proceedings relative thereto and expenses attending the same, based on the past, can be given.

The first news will be the butchery of several families or individuals by the Indians. Then fat contracts [illegible] given out to a few Government favorites, a band of United States troops will be thrown into Florida and war waged. In the course of two or three years about ten of the last of the Seminoles will be killed. The balance—that is, all that can be caught—will be shipped off West to rot, or meet with a violent death in the vicinity of some Indian agency, military post, or whisky den. Up to the present time the estimated cost to the United States Government of every Seminole man, woman, and child, is $30,000 each, which gives to the twenty-one remaining just $630,000 before they are provided for. Valuable Indians these, very.

But Florida is beginning to recover from the blighting effects of this worse than disgraceful Indian war. Notwithstanding the millions upon millions expended in its prosecution, it left the State impoverished. The pious philanthropists of the North who advocate the present system, are generally interested directly or indirectly in the great contracts calling for blankets and calicoes, scalping-knives and fire-arms, wagons and supplies of all sorts, and they get whatever pecuniary benefit arises from the inhuman system. If bona fide settlers remain quiet they are slaughtered by the Indians. If they volunteer and act, they are disparaged by the regular troops, and denounced as assassins by the philanthropists. So that between all this the true interests of a Territory are blighted, so long as an Indian war is carried on by United States troops.

Relieved from this incubus at the present time, the varied interests of this State are beginning to show forth. Two railroads are progressing rapidly. One from Jacksonville west to Tallahasse and Pensacola called the Atlantic Central and Gulf Railroad; the other called the Florida Railroad, commencing at Fernandina, situated on Amelia Island at the mouth of St. Mary's River, and projected to Cedar Keys on the Gulf of Mexico, a distance of 160 miles. Seventy miles of this road are now in active and profitable operation. The largest steamships can come direct from New-York to Fernandina. It is believed here that this will be the main route of travel from New-York to New-Orleans, Havana, Vera Cruz, Isthmus of Tehuantepec, Central America and Aspinwall. By the map, or the way the bird flies, it is certainly the most feasible route. Fernandina, now three years old, is quite a thriving town, and bids fair to become a large commercial port. The lumber business on the St. John's is brisk, and planters are coming in and locating in the interior. But there is one thing that operates against the speedy occupation and development of Florida lands. It is the high price of negroes. A little study on this point will perhaps afford some explanation of the determination to reopen the Slave-trade, so suddenly sprung upon the country by the Wanderer.

The Slave-trade in the United States was abolished at the instance of the South, not from motives of humanity, but in obedience to those imperious laws which regulate labor, trade and commerce. Then there was an equilibrium. More slaves would have been a burden—less would have created a scarcity. For several years past a silent yet slow process has been going on. It is, that the slave population has been concentrating in the slave portion of the Mississippi valley. There the lands are richer. There more of the great staples, such as cotton, corn, tobacco and sugar, can be raised to the hand. The planters are able and willing to pay the present prices for negroes, hence the reopening of the Slave-trade is not looked upon with favor in that region. They prefer to let well enough alone, fearing to raise new issues that might as well be avoided. But it is gradually [illegible] in the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida that the case is different. The quality of the land in these States as compared with that of the Mississippi valley is poorer. The planters are not so wealthy. The scarcity and high price of negroes prevent new lands from being occupied and lessens the profits of old plantations, and, therefore, the cry now is "more negroes and at lower prices." The de[illegible] supply. There is more going on in this business than is generally known. It is rumored that two cargoes have been landed on the Gulf coast of Florida, and that more of the same sort are coming. The bark Ardanes, the captain of which was arrested in Jacksonville some time since, finally sailed from that port with American papers, and is now well known to be filled with African stock either for Cuba or this coast. Other vessels are known to be engaged in the same business. If the Slave-trade is not in reality re-opened at this time, the indications are that it soon will be, and continued until the present demand is satisfied. No more respect is paid to United States laws on the subject, by those interested, than the lover of good brandy pays to the Maine liquor law. This is no doubt partly owing to the demoralized condition of our administration and the politics of the country generally. When you talk to a planter about the sin of the business as against the negro, he is so thoroughly satisfied of the advantage derived from the change by the sable population, the rapidity with which it contributes to the power and wealth of the great northern hive, himself coming out last and least, that his blood boils by reason of the mistaken ground of action on the part of Abolitionists, not from fear that he is to be deprived of his rights.

OCEOLA.

The China correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger says: "Thirteen vessels have left China for [illegible]asaki within the last two months, and strong in[illegible] exist of a very fair trade springing up. One [illegible] vessels (the American ship Florence, Capt. De[illegible], the first modern trading vessel visiting Japan,) obtained at once a cargo of ten thousand piculs of vegetable wax (about 1,[illegible] lbs.) which cost but $7 the picul, and which sells in Europe at from $18 to $[illegible]. Here is a clear gain of about $120,000—a very fair balance for [illegible], while hundreds of others are lying idle east and [illegible], ruining their owners and affording food for worms."

Trial of James Stephens for the Murder of his Wife by Poison.

TWELFTH DAY.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Before the Hon. Judge Roosevelt.

The cross-examination of James Hannah was resumed on Saturday. He heard of Mrs. Stephens' illness from his wife, after the first visit of Dr. Cadmus went to see her a few days after that Doctor's second visit; continued to visit her up to the time of her death; saw her every evening during the last two weeks of her illness, up to the Sunday previous to her death; saw each of the Bell girls give her medicine; Sophia gave her medicine twice while he was there; once was on the Sunday previous to her death; Fanny gave her a powder; was not certain it was a powder, but Fanny called it medicine, and mixed it in a teacup; saw her on one occasion give her aunt a white pill, with arsenic on it.

District-Attorney—Was it arsenic she gave her aunt?

Witness did not know what arsenic was; it might have been sugar; she took it out of a bowl; Sophia gave the deceased other medicine, which she took out of the clock; did not say on Friday that Fanny gave her aunt medicine twice; did not say on Friday that I gave six cents for arsenic, and had three cents change; bought the arsenic of Flynn; it was to poison rats with; the rats were eating the butter in the cellar; the prisoner was brought to his (witness') house, by an officer, one evening since his arrest; had seen him at the Tombs beside; did not go to the Coroner's inquest, not being subpœnaed; Stephens never helped me out of any difficulty; he assisted to get my boy off one day from the Jefferson Market Police Court; never heard Stephens say that he had influence enough to keep my boy from going to the Penitentiary for stealing; it was never the subject of remark in my family that it was a pity that Stephens was tied to such an old woman; she was not an old woman; she was young enough for him; forty-six years was on her coffin.

John A. Candy testified that he had been admitted to see the body of Mrs. Stephens while it was lying in Bellevue Hospital, after exhumation. He did not touch the body.

James M. Trimble was examined as to Stephens' character for peace and quietness during his connection with the Twenty-seventh-street Methodist Church; to the best of his knowledge, the character of the defendant, on those points, was very good.

Considerable altercation occurred between the counsel touching the admissibility of this testimony.

John Stevenson was the next witness. He is the well known omnibus and carriage manufacturer in the Third-avenue, and the employer of Stephens. He is also a member of the Twenty-seventh-street Methodist Church; he had never seen any thing wrong in Stephens' character, except an undue intimacy with Sophia Bell; they had been found in the street together, and Sophia used to come in to the Sunday-school, and take a seat on the male side near Stephens, which was unusual: she was a member of the choir of which witness was leader, and he often saw telegraphing between her and Stephens; she would then leave the church before the audence were dismissed, and he would follow her; this was more conspicuous after the death of Mrs. Stephens than before; was at a Sunday-school pic-nic in the Summer of 1850; saw the Bell girls in circumstances that night be construed as being under the influence of liquor; there was an abandon of manner, flushed countenance, approach to dishabille and such other things as might be construed to occur from liquor; saw no black eye on the body of Mrs. Stephens.

Cross-examined by the District-Attorney—When found in the street they were merely walking, passing to and from the church, going in and out of church at irregular times; could not say he saw Sophia going out of church more than three times before church was out; the impression on witness' mind was that it was a frequent occurrence for Stephens to go out; might have gone out fifty times during the ten years he was there; is confident that Sophia left church in this way after her aunt's death; it was necessary for Sophia to be back at Sunday class at half-past one o'clock; had no knowledge of the family arrangements, and did not know if it was necessary to go out of church before the time; she took a pew immediately in front of Stephens, and witness thought she conversed with him at that time; the telegraphs that he saw pass between Miss Bell and Stephens were laughing, smirking and motions of the head, which were understood as recognitions; there were certain contortions of the countenance and arrangement of features; his impression was that the cheeks, lips and eyes were in play, the "contortions" were pleasurable in appearance; it was mere than a smile, it was a telegraphic arrangement of the features, a certain arrangement by which signals could pass from one to the other, which no other person could understand; there was a smirk and such an arrangement of the features as was understood, for Miss Bell got up and went out; on Stephens' side there was a movement of the lips; understood these to be telegraphic signals by the result, which was that Miss Bell left the church, and Stephens followed her; it was part of my business as an officer to watch the people around the church; I understood that there was a gentleman paying attentions to Miss Bell with a view to marriage; I know him by sight, I saw him pay her attentions at the picnic; I spoke to Miss Bell at the picnic; I did not myself think she was intoxicated; I said her manner would lead others to suppose so; I have seen her and her sister with young men, kissing and hugging; I can't say that I have seen Miss Bell kiss any young men; I did not speak to Miss Bell about her conduct; I drank nothing but water that day; I do not know if there was any liquor at that picnic; my wife and daughter were there; they took off a portion of their clothing; I cannot say if they took off as much as the Misses Bell without counting the pieces they had on; I have not contributed any money for this defence; Stephens at first was paid by me one dollar per day, and after that nine or ten shillings a day; I saw Mr. Cardwell at the picnic; I think he walked to the boat that day; I did not kiss any lady myself that day; I think I did not; it is not my habit.

William Mills, examined by Mr. Cushing—I knew the defendant and his deceased wife; have lived in the same house with them; saw Mrs. Stephens during her last illness, and did not notice that she had a black eye; as far as I know the relations between Stephens and his wife were quite of a peaceable character; was at the picnic referred to, the latter end of 1858, and saw intoxicating liquors on the ground; Miss Fanny Bell offered me some ice-water and gave me some gin.

Cross-examined by the District Attorney—I cannot say how often I was in the house during Mrs. Stephens' illness; probably more than twice a week; I cannot recollect that Fanny Bell told me who brought the gin to the pic nic; cannot say that she told me it was Mr. King; I told the fact about the gin to Mr. Cushing, one of the counsel for defendant, in the hall; I think I also told Stephens about it in the shop; I never asked Fanny Bell to marry me, nor did I pay her any especial attentions; she did not request me not to call upon her or visit her, nor did she write me to that effect; I once gave her a hymn book; I can't exactly say what was in the note that I received from her; there was something about going out on Sunday carriage riding.

James Gaddis testified that he had seen Sophia Bell several times in the company of Stephens; more than thirty times.

Cross-examined by Mr. Shaffer—I never contributed money for the defence; never heard it said that it would be a disgrace to the Twenty-seventh-street Church to allow this man to be convicted.

Mr. Cushing proposed to read a letter from Charles Bell, (the father of Sophia and Fanny Bell,) written to the defendant, (Stephens,) and which has been identified by Robert Bell and other witnesses as in his handwriting.

Mr. Shaffer objected to its being put in evidence, unless the counsel for the prosecution were first permitted to read it. The letter was then given to the District-Attorney who, having read it, said he would hand it to the Court, in order that the Judge might see whether it was admissible or not.

The Court declined to be put in that position.

The District-Attorney then objected to its admissibility as irrelevant. The Judge sustained the objection. Exception taken by Mr. Cushing. The Judge said he would take the letter home and read it, and decide on Monday whether it was relevent.

Mr. Cushing said that they had a number of witnesses in Court as to the character of the prisoner, but under the intimation of the Court he would not occupy the time of the Jury. With the exception of medical testimony the defence had no other evidence to offer.

The case was then closed for the defence, with the exception of the examination of Professor Doremus, Dr. Detmold, Dr. Zencker, and other chemical and medical witnesses who were called by the prosecution. The Hon. Daniel Ullmann will examine them as witnesses in chief for the defence. This probably will occupy two or three days, after which the District-Attorney will proceed with his rebutting testimony.

Decisions in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—MARCH 19.

Before Judge Betts.

COLLISION AT WHARF—BOISTEROUS WEATHER.

David M. Wetmore vs. The Steamer Granite State.—The pleadings charge that the barge Rambler was moored at Pier No. 22, East River, Dec. 18, 1857, taking in a load from a ship lying at the same pier, and was run into, broke adrift and injured in the night time by the steamer Granite State. The answer alleges that the steamer is a freight and passenger boat, plying regularly between New-York and Hartford; that she arrived in port during a dark and boisterous state of weather, at about 4 o'clock, A. M.; was coming round in the East River in the usual manner, and the collision occurred in consequence of the negligence of the barge, no person or look-out being on board, and no light displayed. A large amount of testimony was given, each party seeking to show the other guilty of negligence and culpable conduct in what was omitted and what was done conducing to the collision.

Held by the Court: That upon the proofs, the barge was placed in a usual and proper position at the end of the pier, and her owner was not obliged by the custom of the port or in his business to have a watch kept on board or a light suspended during the night time; that the steamer was under obligation to avoid coming upon vessels moored at the wharves, and that she undertook at her own peril to reach her usual berth, if the boisterous weather, the darkness of the night, or the passing of ferry-boats rendered it dangerous or even difficult to do so. The barge was not upon any tracks the steamer was entitled to take, but was lying at a wharf from which the steamer was by the laws of navigation compelled to keep a safe distance. The steamer was not acting under any constraint of the weather or other emergency, and having elected to navigate under the embarrassments surrounding her, it was done at her own peril, and she must be answerable for the consequences.

Decree for the libelant for his damage, with order of reference to a Commissioner.

EXCEPTIONS TO INTERROGATORIES.

The ship Sea Nymph, Edward Mott Robinson vs. D. Herman Lowett—Exceptions were taken by the claimant to interrogatories propounded him by the libelant. The libel seeks to enforce from the vessel payment of $2,031 25 upon an alleged engagement of the claimant, her owner, made Jan. 31, 1855, to pay the libelant, a ship broker, that sum for procuring a charter party for the ship to proceed from New-York to the Chincha Islands and there load with guano and thence proceed to St. Thomas, West Indies. The libel avers that the libelant performed the agreement by procuring the charter party stipulated for, but this claimant, after sailing the ship under the charter party to Callao, refused to fulfill its terms, and deviated from it, and made a different voyage, and now refuses to pay the money to the libelant for his services as agreed; also avers that the ship instead of going to St. Thomas, came into this port with a cargo of guano and made freight thereon.

The answer filed by the claimant denies and puts in issue the material averments in the libel, and also takes exception to the jurisdiction of the Court in the case.

The libelant therefore filed eight interrogatories to be answered by the claimant Robinson, who took exception to the second, third and fourth, as immaterial and irrelevant.

Held by the Court—That the answer filed by the claimants is a full and sufficient answer to all the matters pertinent to the issues made upon the pleadings in the cause, and the inquiries propounded in the second, third and fourth interrogatories are not made important or relative by any charges or allegations set forth in the libel or answer.

Ordered—That the exceptions to the interrogatories be allowed, with costs to be taxed.

The receipts have been very liberal, chiefly from Buenos Ayres, Montevideo, &c., and the market is now well supplied with these kinds. The Trade are unwilling to operate to any extent at present rates, expecting that, with large arrivals, prices will recede, while many of the importers are sanguine of obtaining full prices by waiting, and refuse to offer their receipts at any concession. The late advices from Buenos Ayres quote an advance of 2c. ₱ lb. on Dry Hides, costing 22c. on board, which has strengthened the views of holders. The market is very poorly supplied with common Hides, and only a moderate quantity are expected very soon. Upper Leather Hides are scarce, and in active request. In Salted Hides there is no change to notice. Receipts have been 80,601 Hides from Foreign ports, as follows: 32,896 Buenos Ayres and Montevideo, and 3,174 do. Horse, ex Lovett, Peacock, Paladin and T. Cushing; 23,191 Dry and 590 Salted Rio Grande, ex R. A. Fisher, *A. LEAD—Foreign Pig has been in request, [illegible] $5 75 ₱ 100 lbs. Other kinds have not varied.

LEATHER—The business in Sole, during the week, HULL & Co. refer to thus: "The receipts this week have been very light, and with fair sales, stock has lessened. The market continues buoyant, and prices well maintained. Good Leather is scarce, and either ordered ahead, or sold immediately on arrival—so that buyers find difficulty in supplying themselves with a choice article of desirable Leather, unless they engage it previous to receipt. An advance of ½c. has been obtained on Light Middle and Buenos Ayres. The receipts of Leather from the tanneries during this Winter have been more regular than for many years previous. We cannot, therefore, expect a very material increase in the supply on the opening of canal navigation."

SUICIDE FROM LOVE—A DESOLATE FEMALE.—The Cincinnati Gazette says a young lady, AMERICA RICH by name, and only 20 years old, committed suicide from disappointed love. It appears that for some two years past she has been on terms of intimacy with a young man. On Sunday last some momentary difficulty occurred, and the young man wrote her a letter stating that he should not visit her again—that the separation this time must be final. Immediately after receiving the note, she remarked to her mother that she did not feel well, and would take a walk, and left the house. She immediately went to a drug store and procured a quantity of strychnine, which was sold to her by the clerk. Immediately upon reaching the street, she took about one-half of the drug, and then hurried to the house of a friend on the corner of Park and Third streets, and informed her of the act of self-destruction, placing the remaining portion of the poison in her hands.

MORE TO BE ADMIRED THAN THE RICHEST DIADEM EVER WORN BY KINGS OR EMPERORS.

WHAT? WHY A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR, because it is the ornament God Himself provided for our race. Reader, although the rose may bloom ever so brightly in the glowing cheek, the eye be ever so bright, the teeth be those of pearls, if the head is bereft of its covering, or the hair be snarled and shriveled, harsh and dry, or worse still, if sprinkled with gray, nature will lose more than half her charms. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative, if used two or three times a week, will restore and permanently secure to all such an ornament. Read the following and judge. The writer of the first is the celebrated Pianist, Thalberg:

NEW-YORK, April 19, 1858.

DR. WOOD—Dear Sir: Permit me to express to you the obligations I am under for the entire restoration of my hair to its original color; about the time of my arrival in the United States it was rapidly becoming gray, but upon the application of your "Hair Restorative" it soon recovered its original hue. I consider your Restorative as a very wonderful invention, quite efficacious as well as agreeable. I am, dear Sir, yours truly,

S. THALBERG.

DRYCH A'R GWYLIEDYDD.
WELSH NEWSPAPER OFFICE,
No. 13 NASSAU-ST., April 12, 1858.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: Some month or six weeks ago I received a bottle of your Hair Restorative and gave it to my wife, who concluded to try it on her hair, little thinking at the time that it would restore the gray hair to its original color, but to her as well as my surprise, after a few weeks' trial it has performed that wonderful effect by turning all the gray hairs to a dark brown, at the same time beautifying and thickening the hair. I strongly recommend the above Restorative to all persons in want of such a change of their hair.

CHARLES CARDEW.

NEW-YORK, July 25, 1857.

PROF. O. J. WOOD: With confidence do I recommend your Hair Restorative, as being the most efficacious article I ever saw. Since using your Hair Restorative my hair and whiskers which were almost white have gradually grown dark; and I now feel confident that a few more applications will restore them to their natural color. It also has relieved me of all dandruff and unpleasant itching, so common among persons who perspire freely.

J. G. KILBY.

PROF. WOOD: About two years ago my hair commenced falling off and turning gray; I was fast becoming bald, and had tried many Remedies to no effect. I commenced using your Restorative in January last. A few applications fastened my hair firmly. It began to fill up, grow out, and turned back to its former color, (black.) At this time it is fully restored to its original color, health, and appearance, and I cheerfully recommend its use to all.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 1, 1857. J. D. HOES.

The Restorative is put up in bottles of three sizes, viz.: Large, medium, and small; the small holds half a pint, and retails for $1 per bottle; the medium holds at least 20 per cent. more in proportion than the small, retails for $2 per bottle; the large holds a quart, 40 per cent. more in proportion, and retails for $3.

THE MINISTER'S WOOING,
BY HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

This serial, begun in the December number of the ATLANTIC, has been received with universal favor, and bids fair to become the greatest work of the gifted novelist. The field is new; for the New-England of the last century is far away from the New-England of to-day; and the pages of the story already published show how completely the author has entered into the quaint and simple life of that almost forgotten period. Her portraitures of characters are full of spirit—equally remarkable in their firm outlines and in the minute touches which none but the hand of genius can give. THE MINISTER'S WOOING will be continued through the year.

The pages of the ATLANTIC are stereotyped, and back numbers can be supplied.

TERMS—Three Dollars per annum, or twenty-five cents a number. Upon the receipt of the subscription price, the Publishers will mail the work to any part of the United States, prepaid. Subscriptions may begin with either the first or any subsequent number.

The postage of the ATLANTIC is 36 cents a year, prepaid.

CLUBS.—For Ten Dollars the Publishers will send five copies of the ATLANTIC for one year, the subscribers to pay their own postage.

Clergymen, Teachers and Postmasters will receive the work for Two Dollars a year.

Booksellers and Newsmen will obtain the terms by the hundred, &c., upon application to the publishers.

THE OLIVE AND THE PINE.
PART I. SPAIN.
PART II. NEW-ENGLAND,

16mo..Price 62 cents.

The Hon. Wm. H. Prescott said;
"This book contains on every page the proofs of the writer's sensibility, and of a truly poetic nature."

From the North American Review.
Vividly graphic, rich in poetical thought and imagery, and free in versification. * * * *

From the Christian Examiner.
We would fain believe that the success of this volume may reveal another name worthy to be added to the list of American poets.

From the Springfield Republican.
This volume appeals to our feelings at once. The "Andalusian Guitar" sets the heart and feet dancing.

From the Christian Register.
The verses suggested by our natural scenery, reveal a powerful imagination.

From the Home Journal.
One must have quaffed rich draughts in the wine of that glowing land to be able to write "The Song of the Sun."

Just published by
CROSBY, NICHOLS & CO., Boston.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Our files of papers received from Buenos Ayres to January 20, contain a remarkable correspondence between the Secretary of State of that Government and the American Consul, Mr. W. H. Hudson. It appears that the Buenos Ayrean executive had taken offence at the entrance of the American war-vessels into the Parana without its consent previously obtained, and had requested our Consul to signify so much to Commodore Shubrick. Mr. Hudson, however, interposed the fact that the Commodore and the Commissioner had stopped at Buenos Ayres, Jan. 1, to pay their respects to President Alsina, but his absence had prevented an interview, and any explanations that might have attended it. He also pleaded in mitigation, that the vessels were all bound to Argentine ports, one only excepted, whose mission to Paraguay was one of peace, not of war. This apology the Buenos Ayrean Secretary admitted, conditionally, his right to apply for more and better to the Commodore in person being reserved.

The arrival of the Asia from Liverpool, and of the Borussia from Southampton, on Saturday, puts us in possession of our European files and correspondence to March 5. The general traits of the news had previously been received by the Weser. We add various matters of interest.

From Venezuela, our accounts, to March 5, indicate the immediate approach of another revolution in that unhappy country. President Castro, by various arbitrary and unconstitutional acts, had provoked a general feeling of discontent, which on the 1st inst. manifested itself in an insurrectionary movement at Caracas, which, however, was forcibly repressed. Throughout the Republic similar demonstrations were on foot, or threatened. The publication of a general amnesty, on the 26th ult., had caused the resignation of the Cabinet, and necessitated the selection of a new one. Dr. Eliseo Acosta had been appointed Envoy to the United States.

We have dates from Truxillo, Honduras, to March 5. Apprehensions were still entertained of an attack from Walker and his band. Rumor states that a large party in the interior of the State look eagerly for his coming, and would at once join him.

Advices from the Cape of Good Hope, to Jan. 26, apprise us that the small-pox, which had been decimating the population, had nearly disappeared. The Colonial elections were progressing. Every arrival from India was bringing numbers of invalided officers and soldiers to recruit in the cooler atmosphere of Cape Town.

Nothing of special importance was done by the State Senate on Saturday. In the Assembly the concurrent resolutions for the reorganization of the Judiciary were called up and adopted. A great number of bills were introduced, a list of the most important of which will be found in our telegraphic summary of the proceedings.

A dreadful accident occurred on the Great Western (Canada) Railroad on Friday night, equaling, if not surpassing, in its horrors that which took place at the Des Jardines bridge some two years ago. The locality of the accident was between Flamboro and Dundas. A portion of an embankment had been washed away, and the engine of the express train plunged into a chasm nearly twenty feet deep, followed by the baggage and the passenger cars. We publish a list of six killed and nine wounded—all who had been extricated from the wreck at the date of our last dispatches. A terrible storm was prevailing at the time of the accident, which added to the horrors of the occasion.

The damage by the Spring freshets this year is likely to prove very considerable. At Albany, yesterday, the water was six feet over the docks, though last night it was receding. Twenty miles or more of the Hudson River Railroad track is submerged, and travel over it is suspended—the passengers being conveyed to Albany from Rhinebeck by steamer. A very heavy freshet is also reported in the Penobscot River.

The remains of Mike Walsh were yesterday conveyed to Greenwood Cemetery for interment. The funeral services were performed at the late residence of the deceased, No. 108 West Twenty-first-street, at 2 P. M. A large concourse of people gathered in the vicinity, and a great many of them followed the remains to their last resting-place. The funeral procession was a long one, and the streets through which it passed were full of spectators.

Bernard McGaffney, a peddler, unfavorably known to the police, was arrested on Saturday, on suspicion of having been concerned in the death of Mike Walsh. He was seen in the vicinity where the body was found early on Thursday morning, and Mr. Knapp, a witness at the Coroner's inquest, says he resembles one of the men whom he saw running from the spot immediately after he heard the cry of "Murder."

The City Inspector reports the mortality of the week on Saturday noon, the 12th inst., as 409, a very suspiciously low number—lower, in fact, than the weekly mortality of the same period during the past two years, and a decrease of 25 from the report of the previous week.

Saturday was the twelfth day of the trial of Stephens, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, for the alleged murder of his wife. The defence concluded the examination of all their witnesses except Professor Doremus and the other professional men whom they intend to call, as experts on the arsenic question. The trial will certainly occupy the remainder of the week.

In the Court of General Sessions, on Saturday, Thomas Smith, a colored boy, who was indicted for arson in the first degree in setting fire to the dwelling house of Mr. Rickersfield, in Seventh-avenue, on Feb. 14, pleaded guilty to arson in the second degree and was sentenced to ten years and one month in the State Prison. Michael Donnelly, convicted of assault and battery, was sentenced to sixty days in the City Prison and fined $100. There were no trials.

The sales of Cotton on Saturday comprised 3,000 bales, chiefly in transitu. Prices were firm. Flour was more sought after, at full rates. Grain was inactive. A very moderate business was transacted in Coffee, Molasses, Whisky and Provisions. Pork was lower. Rice and Sugars were freely purchased, at buoyant prices. Other branches of trade exhibited no remarkable changes. The total number of vessels of all classes in port was 637.

Europe and the Stock Exchange.

It would not be easy to find a more striking illustration of the little wisdom which suffices not merely to govern mankind in the aggregate, but to regulate the private affairs of individual men, than is furnished by the influence exerted upon our domestic interests in America by the actual uncertainty and threatening aspect of the politics of Europe. In the face of the almost universal revival of American enterprise, and of the rapidly-developing change for the better which, ever since the crisis of 1857, has been coming over the management of all our great corporations, and of those vast centres of investment which determine the general tone and tenor of the financial world, we see the Stock Exchange of New-York firing, as it were, signal-guns of distress on the arrival of each successive steamer from Europe, and the public at large waiting, with an air of almost ludicrous distress, upon the result of Lord Cowley's mission to Vienna, before making up its mind as to the probable value of the great arteries of our own internal traffic, and the reservoirs of our own national wealth. It is undoubtedly true that no serious political convulsion could take place in any of the leading countries of the Old World without affecting, in a greater or a less degree, the commercial classes, and through them the general welfare, of the United States. But it is equally true that in many instances such convulsions must primarily, at least, affect our own markets for good rather than for evil, and that in no probable case could they so grievously block and dislocate the machinery of our exchanges as to hinder the natural course of our legitimate enterprises towards a firm recovery and a healthful progress.

In the present state of things it may be asserted fearlessly, that the war pamphlets of M. de la Guerremere, the ominous arming of France, the uneasy lamentations of mercantile Britain, and the silly uproar of terrified Germany, have had a much smaller share in producing the grave depression which has overtaken the Stock Exchange of New-York, than the facilities which that institution offers to a few designing or reckless persons for creating factitious excitements, either of hope or despair, in the mind of that impressible public which persists in imagining that the said Stock Exchange is indeed an exchange for facilitating the commerce in stock property, and not a close corporation for manufacturing financial panics or inflations. The wholesome measure adopted by the Legislature of this State, at its session of 1858, for legalizing the time transactions of brokers in stocks, has rather elevated the reputation than changed the character of the Stock Exchange. As at present constituted and managed, that establishment enjoys the option of maintaining itself respectably by demonstrating that stocks, like all other property, may be honestly dealt with, and made the subject of honorable commerce, or of finally ruining its own occupation, and procuring its abolition as a public nuisance, by playing fast and loose with the confidence of the public and the permanent interests of the community. For the moment it would appear to be determined upon the latter career. Nothing like the evidences of calm and sagacious inquiry into the independent condition of American values, and into the natural and reasonably-to-be-anticipated effect upon these values of impending issues in the affairs of Europe, as yet appears in the transactions of Wall-street. The vague apprehension of war purely and simply suffices to bring a mighty cloud over the spirits of all who deal with the most sensitive creations of credit. Yet what is in truth the war which is thus looked for, or what is there in its complexion, character and possible extent, to provoke a doubt of our own capacity to manage our own interests honestly, and to lead them on to profitable results?

The news by the Asia unquestionably goes to confirm the probability that the Austrian Government will prefer the defence of its intolerable position in Italy by the sword, to any really effective settlement of claims which have become clearly incompatible with the permanent peace of Europe. The most sanguine advocates of peace at any price, do not pretend to suggest that Austria will consent to do more than retire from the Roman Legations simultaneously with the withdrawal of France. There are no indications of a disposition on the part of the Emperor Francis Joseph to atone for his predecessor's violations of the Treaty of 1815, in Naples, in Parma, in Modena, in Tuscany; none of a determination to accept the independence of Italy beyond the Lombardo-Venetian frontier as a fact and a substance to be respected as the independence of the German Duchies has been, as the independence of the Turkish provinces will necessarily be.

Meanwhile, the attitude of France remains unchanged, and remaining unchanged grows daily more serious, more resolute, and daily commands more and more of the sober support of Europe. Russia has pronounced, in no uncertain terms, in favor of the policy of Napoleon III.; and Prussia herself has been forced to recognize the formidable decision of the Czar by the marked diplomatic difference of terms in which she speaks of the wishes of England for peace, and the efforts of Russia to secure it. The public opinion of England is evidently awakening to a sense of the consistent and unanswerable character of the propositions advanced by the French Emperor. The Roman historian and Ex-Minister, Farini, representing a Government of which even Lord Palmerston, in 1850 was forced to say that with the exception of the Roman Republican authorities it had administered the affairs of Central Italy better than any other Government of the century, and writing to Lord John Russell has spoken so earnestly and yet so dispassionately in favor of the action of the French Government, that the most obstinate of the English alarmists are forced to own themselves shaken. Mr. Gladstone, returning from Sardinia to England, has doubtless by this time brought to bear upon his fellow-countrymen all the weight of his profound familiarity with the Italian question in the same sense. As one by one the forces of diplomacy and public opinion continue to press home upon Austria, the sense that she must yield her whole system in Italy or risk everything in the field of battle, it would seem that her temper is more likely to rise to the heat of war than to cool to the wisdom of a just and magnanimous policy.

But what is there in the eventualities thus rendered likely to shatter the fabric of an American prosperity? In what way can a war for the liberation of Italy damage our relations with England, our relations with France, with Germany, with all of Europe indeed? The pressure which such a war must exert upon the resources of the Powers likely to be engaged, will be of a nature rather to foster than to retard the development of the commercial policy which links their interests most closely with our own. The movement of produce, of capital, of passengers within the limits of the United States will not suffer, but rather gain, from the immediate influences of such a conflict as seems now at hand. And assuredly the whole world must ultimately be the gainer by the liberation of the European Governments from the incubus of that unnatural and monstrous state of things in Italy, which has for years vexed the relations of all Europe, retarded the progress of pacific establishments, left alive the embers of revolution, and blighted the prosperity of the oppressors and the oppressed alike. The relief which followed the severance in 1830 of the unnatural union forced by the Treaties of Vienna upon Holland and Belgium, affords but a faint image of the good which must flow from the restoration of Italy to self-government, and from the abolition of the worst terrorism that now exists in Europe.

What We Need Most.

There are several projects before the Legislature for making new Liquor Laws, for amending our City Charter, for regulating the sale of liquor on Sunday, and for various other worthy and desirable objects. But they are all utterly superfluous and even mischievous. They do harm, by withdawing public attention from the real remedy needed for all our existing abuses. We have laws enough,—and they are good enough:—what we need is public officers who will enforce them, and a public sentiment which will compel them to do so.

Our statute-books are incumbered with good laws. They abound upon every subject, and provide for the reform of every abuse. We have stringent laws against the sale of liquor on Sunday. We have laws which, if enforced, would shut up 5,000 of the grog-shops in this City. We have laws to prevent misconduct in office, to provide clean streets, to stop rowdyism and violence, and to give us a peaceful, quiet, orderly City. But they are not enforced. Half our public officers know nothing whatever of their existence, and the other half care nothing. The chances are that half our Police Commissioners have never read the laws by which they should be governed, and are utterly ignorant of the powers with which they are clothed for the public good. Here is the direction in which a remedy should be sought for the evils which afflict us.

The first impulse of many very good men, who labor for reform, is to seek it by a new law. They rush to Albany whenever anything is to be done in New-York. The old license law failed, and they got a prohibitory law passed. That broke down, and then they got a new license law. This proves inefficient, and they rush to Albany to procure the enactment of another. But the real difficulty lies in the fact that the existing law is not enforced. Over 7,000 persons are selling liquor in this City without license. Why are they allowed to do this? And why do not the friends of Temperance bring their united influence to bear upon the public officers who so shamefully neglect the duties they were appointed to perform? The same thing holds true in every department of our public affairs. We have laws enough,—but we want them more rigidly executed.

We cannot help thinking that the friends of practical reform, in all its branches, fall into a serious mistake in these matters. Instead of seeking to obtain new laws, they should combine their influence and their efforts to enforce those we have already. An excellent example in this respect has been afforded by the gentlemen who associated themselves together a year or two ago to promote the more quiet and orderly observance of the Sabbath. They sought no new laws:—they did not even invoke the extreme power of existing statutes:—they held no public meetings, indulged in no loud proclamations, and entered upon no violent and boisterous crusade. They simply brought their united influence to bear, through personal interviews and the public press, upon the officers and magistrates charged with the preservation of the public peace. They acted quietly, earnestly, steadily and judiciously,—aiming to conciliate support rather than arouse hostility, and enlisting public favor and countenance by the manifest justice of their claims and the prudent moderation with which they were urged. They have succeeded admirably in their efforts:—and if they have not already accomplished everything they desired, they have achieved much more than could have been expected, and have acquired a position which will enable them hereafter to accomplish still more in the same direction.

We commend their example to the attention of others who have similar objects in view, but who have pursued them hitherto with less wisdom and consequently with less success. Let them stay away from Albany and devote their attention and their energies to securing the enforcement of the laws already on our statute-book.

Position of the Mexican Question.—The Washington Union assures us that England and France have no disposition to interfere in the political affairs of Mexico, and that the fleets of those countries are acting in concert with our own naval force in the harbor of Vera Cruz. This information, evidently emanating from the State Department, comes at a favorable moment. We are daily expecting to hear that the Liberal party under Juarez has been successful. What should hinder our Government, under such circumstances, from taking steps to secure a permanent influence over the neighboring Republic? Neither conquest, purchase, nor any measure of an unfriendly aspect, is required or proper. It is only requisite that Juarez be recognized and sustained, and the chances are that to recognize is to sustain him. At the worst, a slight display of force would prove sufficient.

Having firmly established Juarez in his rights as Constitutional President, we may then make such commercial arrangements as have long been needed. We can secure the safety of our citizens residing in Mexico or passing through it. That country opens up a vast field for American enterprise and capital; but its wretched condition has hitherto made it unsafe for Americans to go there. What we require is not territory or dominion but such friendly, safe relations, social and commercial, as exist between us and our other neighbors of the British Provinces. All the rest we may well afford to leave to the arbitrament of time. If at some future day Mexico should become Americanized, to such an extent as to desire annexation, its manifest destiny will work its own fulfillment. This is a matter with which the present has little to do.

It is abundantly evident that, without outside help from some quarter, Mexico can be neither a prosperous country nor a safe neighbor. Yet, while we will not consent that the indispensable aid should come from any European Power, our Government seems unwilling that we should render it ourselves. That the period of inaction, hesitation and inefficiency is near its close, we trust and almost believe. Why should we continue to cast a longing gaze to Cuba, that forbidden fruit, when Mexico is practically so much more important, and really so much more valuable to us?

Chivalric Swindling.

In one respect, at least, the Chivalry of the South differs from the Chivalry of the Middle Ages. Had Bayard been detected in robbing a hen-roost, or Du Guesclin in picking a pocket, either of those heroes would unquestionably have sought a refuge from the shame and black disgrace of his deed in some hermit's cell, or in the sad silence of the suicide's voiceless grave. The "gentlemen of Georgia," on the contrary, seem to take a special pride in being gazetted as knaves and liars; and after stealing the honorable flag of an honorable association to cover the most dastardly tricks of the piratical peddler, flaunt their scandalous greed afresh in the eyes of men, by open and riotous violations of the laws even of their own peculiar society.

It will be remembered that when certain stolen negroes were landed from the now infamous yacht Wanderer, they were hurried into the interior of Georgia with all the haste suggested by the fear of detection. They were subsequently sought by the officers of the Government, and some of them were brought back to Savannah. It is needless to add that, according to law, they should have been returned to Africa in the same manner as were the negroes rescued from the Echo. The vessel herself was confiscated, and, according to the requirements of an act of Congress, should have been sold at auction for account of the Government. An auction of the yacht was accordingly held, but with very remarkable results, and under very strange auspices.

One Mr. Lamar, the original owner, under false pretences, of the Wanderer, appeared at the sale and claimed the negroes from the yacht as his "property." The officers of the law at Savannah, with a remarkable disregard of their duty, obeyed the mandate of this swindler, and quietly transferred the Africans to Mr. Lamar, who now detains them. As for the yacht, Mr. Lamar said that, it being also "his property," as a matter of course no gentleman would bid against him for his vessel. The appeal was so far successful that no one in the crowd took any part in the bidding, except a Mr. Van Horn, who ran up to four thousand dollars this splendid yacht, (worth, perhaps, twenty or thirty thousand at the least,) and received immediately afterwards a sound pummelling for his pains at the hands of the valiant Lamar and some half-dozen friends, and in the presence of the law officers of the Federal Government.

Now if the yacht and the negroes landed from her were in reality Mr. Lamar's property, as he insolently claimed them to be, then Mr. Lamar is a slave-dealer, a kidnapper of negroes, a felon guilty of an act equivalent in the meaning of the statute to piracy, and he should have been arrested on the spot. Instead of which, he was suffered to stand there, after his public and defiant avowal of a crime punishable by imprisonment and fine, and dictate terms at the auction of the vessel. Still worse—he was suffered to wrest from the hand of legal mercy the victims of his unpunished fraud.

Whether the matter is to rest where it is, or justice and law are to be vindicated, we confess we are somewhat curious to learn. It cannot be altogether needless to ascertain how far such a precedent may be employed, and to what lengths it may be made to go. If considerations of vulgar interest are sufficient to induce a community to side with any impudent thief who, like this fellow Lamar, may choose to snap his fingers in the face of the law, then the sooner respectable States are informed of the fact the better for the quiet transaction of our Federal affairs. If Georgia chooses to assume the responsibility of this sort of cowardly pilfering and spiritless piracy, it is quite time that the United States should be put in a position either to coerce her into decency, or to shake off the disgraceful imputations to which her conduct will give color and shape.

A New Feature of the Paraguay Business—Dispute with Buenos Ayres.—The correspondence between the Government of Buenos Ayres and the United States Consul at that port, which we publish to-day, will be found interesting. That State sets up a pretension that her riverine rights have been ignored, not to say invaded, by the passage into the Parana of the United States Squadron bound to Paraguay, and bases her complaint on the fact that the permission to merchant vessels to ascend the Parana, over which stream Buenos Ayres claims absolute control, does not extend to vessels-of-war without special authority obtained from that Government. The answers of Mr. Consul Hudson to the letters of the Minister are eminently proper in their tone and manner; but it is to be regretted that that official allowed himself to enter upon a correspondence not coming within the scope of his position. He would evidently have done better and have acted more consistently had he referred the Buenos Ayrean Government to Commodore Shubrick, rather than have volunteered "explanations" which it did not belong to his office to offer, and for which he was snubbed by Col. Mitre, the Minister.

We do not see how the pretensions of Buenos Ayres on this subject can be regarded by the United States as in any way valid. The separate existence of Buenos Ayres, as an independent State, has never been acknowledged by any power except England, whose Government, in view of the greater prospect of the payment of the debts due to the British creditors of Buenos Ayres, if the latter State were not called upon to pay her share of the peace expenses or war contingencies of the Confederation, has chosen to treat her as a distinct Republic. All the other great Powers consider the separation of Buenos Ayres from the Confederation as a secession illegal because not agreed to by any of the other members of the league. It is for this reason that the Government of the United States sends a Minister to the Argentine Confederation, but commissions no diplomatic agent to the State of Buenos Ayres. Commodore Shubrick may, therefore, and probably will, refuse to permit the question of the navigation of the Parana by his vessels-of-war to be opened by the State of Buenos Ayres at all.

On the other hand, seeing that the United States have already claimed, in the very matter in dispute with Paraguay, that permission once obtained from any one State to enter the rivers in question the necessity of applying to any other is at once obviated, it would be abundantly sufficient for the Commodore to answer, if he answered at all, that his passages into the Plata having been recognized by Montevideo, and his mission being with Paraguay, he had no explanations to make elsewhere.

These petty States are, however, very jealous of such little privileges as they have it in their power or in their imagination to bestow or contest, and Buenos Ayres has probably started the present point with a view to obtain powerful confirmation of a right of which she herself is extremely doubtful. Commodore Shubrick has abundant reason and precedent for denying the existence of such a right as is now claimed, and we have no doubt that he will maintain the one and assert the other.

Unclaimed Deposits in Savings Banks.—Mr. Opdyke, of this City, a careful and judicious legislator, has introduced in the Assembly a new bill in respect to deposits lying unclaimed in Savings Banks, for a period so long as to raise the presumption that no claimant will ever appear. That gentleman reports the measure in question as Chairman of the Select Committee, appointed to investigate the subject of such unclaimed deposits.

Mr. Opdyke's bill, so far as we can learn its purport from the telegraphic report, proposes to take all moneys which shall have been on deposit in Savings Banks for twenty years and place them in the State Treasury, after advertising the same for six months—the State holding itself liable to refund them, with interest, to the true owners, should such at any time appear and substantiate their claims.

It is a delicate matter for the State to interfere with money placed in bank by those who had the exclusive right of its control. But at the same time it is not questioned that large amounts lie thus on deposit never to be called for by owners. Absence, lapse of time, and death have extinguished the claims which might have been set up together with all evidence of their existence. In regard to such deposits the question arises whether there is any reason why the money should lie forever accumulating in the hands of Bankers to whom it was intrusted for no such purpose, but to be restored upon call to the persons entitled to receive it. Mr. Opdyke's bill takes the ground that after twenty years a presumption arises that deposits will not be claimed, and that, being unclaimed, they should be taken for public purposes, always recognizing the obligation to restore them, with interest, upon authentic demand.

But if the bill contemplates—and we are not certain that it does, though the report has such a look—that deposits thus to be taken shall be placed in the Treasury, subject to the general uses of the State, then it certainly requires amendment. Let the money be funded for objects of education or improvement—the principal to remain untouched. To cast it into the Treasury, subject to miscellaneous appropriation, is by no means the use which should be made of it, and to fritter away the principal is wholly inadmissible.

A Defence of the Ex-Emperor of Hayti by Chevalier Raybaud.—We publish a letter addressed to the Editor of the Presse from a gentleman better informed as to the history and policy of the late Emperor of Hayti than any other European. Whether in his zeal for French interests, and his addiction to the single idea of insular unity, which has governed him throughout his association with Haytian politics, he is as impartial as is desirable, is another question. Chevalier Raybaud has been for twelve years past the French Chargé or Consul at Port-au-Prince. His intercourse with Soulouque was of the most intimate description; and very many of the measures which have tended to advance in a marked degree the interests of the people, were known to be the products of M. Raybaud's salutary influence. It must also be stated that the Ex-Consul is understood to have acted, in a private capacity, as financial agent for the Ex-Emperor, investing in the French funds those splendid savings which are to gild the exile of the old chief. The letter is well worth reading.

A Trifle Too Polite.

An example of the truth of the saying that out of evil cometh good, is afforded by the fact that but for a serious accident to the steamer Weser, which compelled her to put in to Queenstown in distress, her German Captain would never have been honored with the extremely Irish address which was presented to him by the enterprising and ambitious citizens of that pleasant seaport.

The Town Commissioners viewed his visit as an important one,—which it certainly was, to him at any rate, since had he not got there he might possibly have gone to a damper and much more uncomfortable place than Queenstown; also, as "a fitting occasion,"—which was an indubitable fact, seeing that he had put in there purposely to refit.

The address, however, after somewhat unnecessarily reminding Capt. Gaetjen that "the accident which compelled him" to put into the Cove, "afforded him the means of judging" the capabilities of the harbor, declares that Queenstown sees in the said accidental visit of the Weser "the realization of a long-cherished hope that the position and advantages of the port would induce some great mercantile company to establish another link in the great commercial chain," &c., with America. This exceedingly intricate bull appears to have suggested itself to the minds of the townspeople "when they beheld the gigantic proportions, &c., &c., of the great ship Weser;" and there would have been no great harm done if the address had not gone on to express a hope that the accident which led to the visit of the steamer would prove the pioneer of a great many others. There may be a great deal of good fellowship in such an aspiration, but it would be hard to find much genuine charity in its practical meaning. "Town Commissioners" in Ireland, however, do not, we believe, greatly trouble themselves with practical meanings when they make public addresses.

A New Mission to Japan.—Arrangements are in progress, under the auspices of some of the churches of this City, to establish a new mission in Japan. The primary object will be the introduction of Christian civilization;—the means to be used will be of a practical and educational character. The mission will consist of six persons—two of whom, the Rev. S. R. Brown and the Rev. G. F. Verbeck, are clergymen; three are ladies, and the sixth, Dr. D. B. Simmons, is a physician and surgeon. The movement is under the special charge of the Reformed Dutch Church, but relies mainly on individual aid for support. Special pains will be taken to introduce all the useful and practical arts, with industrial machines, &c., into Japan, and thus prepare the way for the moral and religious instruction of the people.

American Produce and Foreign Tariffs.—Some of the alterations which have been made in European tariffs during the last eighteen months have an important bearing upon American commerce. Russia, by an ukase of April, 1858, imposed an additional rate of 5 per cent. on the import and export duties on all articles, except sugar. Sweden, from Jan. 1, 1858, has made very considerable reductions in her tariffs—62 per cent. in the case of ground rice, 43 per cent. on bear, glutton, racoon and fox skins, and 57 per cent. on leaf tobacco, while machinery and tools are now admitted free. Portugal, from the 20th September last, admits free of duty wheat, rye and barley in grain, flour or bread, into the ports of the administrative districts of Oporto, Braga, Viana, Villa Real and Braganza; but this concession ceases, unless extended on the 31st May next. Tuscany, on the other hand, has increased the customs duties leviable on grain to the extent of 50 per cent. Greece now admits agricultural and mechanical machines and implements free of duty, but has augmented the duty on raw cotton 150 per cent., as regards low qualities, while the finest description is favored by a reduction of 75 per cent. The principal alterations in the Greek tariff of 1857 consist in a change from ad valorem to specific duties, while the extensive reductions of duty made in August last are limited, for the most part to woven fabrics.

Further from Buenos Ayres.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE AMERICAN CONSUL AND THE GOVERNMENT OF THE STATE—THE DIGNITY OF THE BUENOS AYREANS RUFFLED—THE AMERICANS PASS UP THE RIVER WITHOUT ASKING PERMISSION—CONSUL HUDSON VOLUNTEERS AN APOLOGY.

By way of Southampton we receive our files of papers from Buenos Ayres to Jan. 20.

The general intelligence has been anticipated by a previous arrival.

In the official columns of the journals, however, we find the following highly interesting correspondence between Col. Mitre, the Foreign Secretary of State, and Mr. William Holley Hudson, the American Consul resident at the capital. The letters of the latter will tell the whole story.

On the 3d January, Colonel Mitre, Minister of Foreign Relations, wrote to Mr. Consul Hudson, United States Consul at Buenos Ayres, referring to the appearance of the United States squadron in the Plata, and their passage up the Parana without the previous consent of the Government of Buenos Ayres, which State claims perfect and absolute sovereignty over the last-named river, and fearing that the act has arisen from an ignorance of the rights of the Republic, Col. Mitre sustains there rights by proof of their acknowledgment by other powers. With this view the Minister cites instances of the permission of Buenos Ayres having been asked by Sir Charles Hotham, on the part of England, and by the Imperial Government of Brazil, for the passage of vessels of war into the Parana, and the Colonel requests the Consul to transmit his letter to the commander of the United States squadron, terminating his said communication as follows:

"In conclusion, the undersigned must remind the Consul, in order that he may transmit the same to the Commodore, that the legislation of Argentine Confederation respecting the free navigation of the Parana is not in this respect uniform with that of the State of Buenos Ayres, the liberty having there been extended, although not in an explicit manner, to vessels-of-war. Consequently, if the immediate object of the Commodore be to proceed to port within the Confederated States, in respect to which the Government does not nor cannot observe hostile motives, the State of Buenos Ayres would have no hesitation in consenting to the free passage of the vessels-of-war which might pass over the rivers in her territory with such a destination—since, in such case, far from abrogating neutrality, she would only be extending it to all the States whose shores are washed by the Parana."

To which letter Mr. Consul Hudson replied as follows, under date Jan. 7:

CONSUL HUDSON TO SECRETARY MITRE.

To His Excellency Colonel Mitre, Minister of Foreign Relations of the State of Buenos Ayres:

The undersigned, Consul of the United States, has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's communication of the 3d inst., in which your Excellency requests the undersigned to inform the Commodore of the naval forces in the waters of the River Plata that the Government has been informed that certain vessels of war, composing a squadron, have passed into the River Parana without the previous knowledge of the Government, and without having solicited permission usual in respect to rivers which, like the Parana, constitute part of the fluvial territory of a State having perfect and absolute sovereignty over the same. Your Excellency also declares in your note the reasons which have led to your directing your attention to the course of the United States vessels, and your Excellency adduces precedents wherein the Government of Buenos Ayres has been consulted in analogous cases.

The undersigned will avail of the first opportunity to transmit to the Commodore of the Squadron a copy of the communication of your Excellency, as also to his Government, for their information.

The undersigned can only assure your Excellency that the Commodore as well as the Commissioner to Paraguay were both very desirous to present their respects to his Excellency the Governor, whom they would have offered such explanations in regard to the objects of the expedition as would have satisfied the Government of His Excellency. They were deprived of the honor of this visit by reason of the absence of His Excellency from the city, and by the inconvenience to which a delay of two days to await his Excellency's return would have involved. If the observations of His Excellency on this subject had been directed to the undersigned, he would have endeavored, as the only representative here of the United States, to have satisfied your Excellency on the points in question; but as your Excellency's only object is that they should be transmitted to the Commodore, the undersigned abstains from voluntarily entering into explanations which might not be considered corresponding with his official capacity.

The undersigned has the honor to subscribe himself, &c., &c.,
W. H. HUDSON."

Col. Mitre, under date of Jan. 8, writes a ceremonious, and of course extremely cool response to Mr. Hudson, intimating that in his previous letter he had referred his interrogatories to Commodore Shubrick, "as he was not aware that the purely consular character of Mr. Hudson qualified him to afford explanations regarding operations of a military character," but as he was the only representative of the United States about that State, and as he appeared competent to satisfy the Government upon the points in question, the Secretary would listen to his explanations, reserving the right to make further demands upon the Commodore upon the subject.

THE CONSUL TO THE SECRETARY—SECOND LETTER.

To His Excellency Colonel B. Mitre, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the State of Buenos Ayres:

The undersigned Consul has the honor to say in reply to your Excellency's note of the 8th, that the United States vessels-of-war which left this port on the 1st inst., or others which may since have passed over the waters claimed as belonging to the jurisdiction of the State of Buenos Ayres, are bound to various ports of the Argentine Confederation on the River Parana. Also, that one of them, bearing the flag of the Commander-in-Chief, W. B. Shubrick, has on board the Commissioner alluded to, sent by the Government of the United States to arrange matters which have been for a long time pending between that Government and the Republic of Paraguay. It is consequently to be presumed that the last-named vessel (if the same be permitted) will ascend the waters of the Paraguay in the performance of her mission, which it is to be hoped will be concluded by an amicable arrangement of all difficulties between the two countries—a result ardently desired by the Government of the United States, as has already been more fully explained by Mr. Yancey, Resident Minister of the United States accredited to the Argentine Confederation, in a recent unofficial interview with the Government of your Excellency. These assurances would have been repeated to you by the Commissioner of the United States to Paraguay, as well as by the Commander-in-Chief of the naval forces, could they have had the honor of an interview with his Excellency the Governor, and I do not doubt that a hint on the part of your Excellency's Government that such an interview was desired, would have detained those gentlemen, notwithstanding their anxiety to proceed without delay to the execution of their mission.

The undersigned, without desiring to open the question, cannot admit that the fluvial rights claimed by the State of Buenos Ayres are identical with the principles proclaimed by the American Union in regard to its interior waters, and desires simply to make this observation in order that his silence might not be construed into assent.

The undersigned besides takes the liberty of informing your Excellency that the Commander of the supply-ship Release, bound to Rosario, received orders to ask permission of the Commandant of the island of Martin Garcia to land and leave there ten empty casks belonging to the United States exploring steamer Argentina, now at anchor in the Tigre, and which the said vessel will call for. This fact I mention, in order that your Excellency may not esteem the action an abuse on the part of the Commander of the Release.

The undersigned confidently trusts that these explanations will be amply satisfactory to your Excellency, and assures your Excellency that nothing will be further from the American Government, or any of its officials, to treat with discourtesy or any want of respect any of the prerogatives of the State of Buenos Ayres.

The undersigned subscribes himself, &c., &c.
WM. HOLLEY HUDSON.

In his response to this very clear statement of the case by the American Consul, the Minister expresses himself satisfied with the assurances furnished that in the omission complained of no disrespect to the Buenos Ayrean Government was intended. He insists, however, upon his point in reference to the exclusion of the foreign war-flag from the North American waters, and regrets that the haste of the Commissioner and Commodore had prevented an interview that might have removed all difficulties, or [illegible] previous communication on the subject had [illegible] made.

The Tribuna, commenting upon the above correspondence, remarks:

"It is to be lamented that the Chief of the United States squadron did not previously solicit the permission of our Government, as it was his duty to do before penetrating into the waters of our river, since in doing so he would have given a practical proof of that courtesy and that respect for our prerogatives of which Mr. Holley Hudson speaks."

A dreadful death from hydrophobia occurred in Cincinnati a day or two ago. The victim was Joseph Wright, who was bitten by his own dog [illegible] ago. He leaves a young widow and one child.

Fast day in Vermont, Friday, April 8. All the New-England States have now appointed Fast-days, all falling in April.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

ACCIDENT FROM A FALLING SIGN.—A man by the name of CHADBURN, who is in the employ of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company as an officer of one of their steamers, was seriously, and it is feared fatally, injured by the falling of a sign upon his head while passing through Fulton-street at 9½ o'clock Saturday morning. The sign was a large one placed in front of the "Working Farmer" office, at No. 143 Fulton-street, and contained the words, "Mapes' Improved Super Phosphate of Lime, and Working Farmer." It was 24 feet long and three feet wide, and had been in its present place six years. Mr. CHADBURN was going from Broadway towards Nassau-street, when a sudden gust of wind wrenched the sign from its fastenings just as he was beneath the spot. It struck him edgewise on the side of the head, and threw him against an iron awning post. He was taken up insensible and apparently dead. On being conveyed to the Hospital he was found to have sustained a concussion of the brain, and probably a fracture of the base of the skull; blood flowed freely from his ears, but there was no external wound. Dr. SHRADY says the injuries are very serious, and his case is critical. Mr. CHADBURN is about 40 years of age, lives at No. 135 Greenwich street, and is a widower.

THE MISSION TO JAPAN.—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Dutch Church is actively engaged in making arrangements for sending out a company of Missionaries to Japan. The Rev. S. R. BROWN, the Rev. G. F. VERBEEK and Dr. D. B. SIMMONS, together with three ladies, have volunteered to go, and it is expected that they will sail about the 1st of May. Besides the dissemination of religious instruction it is proposed to introduce such labor-saving machines and useful inventions as shall be the best adapted to instruct the Japanese in the relation of the natural sciences to agriculture, &c. Special attention will also be given to instructing the people in the science of surgery and medicine. Dr. SIMMONS has lately been engaged in learning the arts of photography, stereoscopy and electrotypy. He has also informed himself in the management of the sewing machine, one of which is to form part of the outfit of the Mission. No permanent location will be fixed upon until the Missionaries shall have had time to survey the country and to determine where their labors will be most effective. It is highly desirable that another person should join the party as an assistant to Dr. SIMMONS, whose duties will be complicated and arduous.

FIRE IN BROOME-STREET.—At 8 o'clock, last evening, a fire broke out in the attic of No. 247 Broome-street, occupied as a lager-bier saloon and dwelling by HENRY SAX. The fire extended to the next buildings adjoining, Nos. 245 and 247½. These two buildings are owned by Mr. CROMWELL, and are damaged to the extent of $300; insured. The loss of SAX is about $200, and insured for $750 in the Safeguard Insurance Company. No. 247½ was occupied as a boarding-house by BARNARD LINTNER, and his loss is about $100; insured in the Stuyvesant Insurance Company. No. 245 is occupied on the first floor by LEWIS NEWMAN as a dry-goods store; damage $503; insured in Astor Insurance Company. The upper floor of No. 245 is occupied as a dwelling and lager-bier saloon by MICHAEL DEIN, and his loss is about $25; insured in the Rutgers Insurance Company. The fire originated in a defect in the chimney-flue.

FIRE IN DUANE-STREET.—The alarm at 9½ o'clock, last evening, was caused by the burning of a straw bed at No. 19 Duane-street. Damage slight.

FIRE IN THE BOWERY.—At 12 o'clock, on Saturday night, a fire took place in the fancy store of ILSEY & TREADWELL, No. 12 Bowery. The damage was slight.

STEAMER CITY OF HARTFORD ASHORE.—The steamer City of Hartford, from Hartford for New-York, ran ashore at 12 o'clock Thursday night on Saybrook Point, near the light, where she remained at last accounts in an exposed and dangerous situation. She left Lyme at 11 o'clock P. M., and after passing out of the river, returned, as was supposed, on account of having been cut through with ice while coming down, and was purposely put ashore to save her from sinking. It was feared she would go to pieces if the heavy blow continued, as the place where she lies is rocky. This steamer belongs to the New-York and Hartford line, and was built at Greenpoint in 1852. She has a vertical engine of 60 inch cylinder and 12 feet stroke.

MOCK AUCTION SWINDLES.—FIELDEN CANTRELL, of Spartenberg District, South Carolina, made two affidavits at the Mayor's Office, Saturday, setting forth that he had been swindled in the purchase of watches, according to the method most in vogue among the auctioneers. He alleged that VALENTINE R. VAN SICKELEN, of No. 1 Park-row, and CHARLES SMITH, of No. 9 City-Hall Square, defrauded him, last Wednesday, out of $62, and that CHARLES PARKHURST, of No. 2 Park-row, swindled him to the extent of $18. The accused were arrested and compelled to return the money.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.—The Rev. C. L. BRACE appeared before the Finance Committee of the Board of Councilmen Friday afternoon, and urged the propriety of the Common Council's making a donation of $1,000 to the Children's Aid Society. He said that during the six years of its existence the Society had cared for $5,000 children, and that during the past year it had provided for nearly 800. They wished the money to defray the expenses of procuring the children homes. The other papers which came before the Committee principally related to private matters.

A GALE.—A heavy gale occurred during Saturday night. During the day the wind blew strongly from the southwest. The vessels anchored in the rivers lay with two anchors down. We have not heard of any serious damage received by them or those laying at the piers. A schooner went ashore on Romer Shoal this morning, but was got off during the afternoon, and towed up under Jersey City. A large number of hogsheads of sugar on Kelsey's wharf, at Brooklyn, were damaged by the sea breaking over the docks. The gale was no doubt heavy on the Sound, as the Eastern steamers were behind time in arriving.

THE PIANO-FORTE MAKERS.—The piano-forte makers met at No. 281 Grand-street yesterday. Delegates from each of the piano-forte manufactories in the City assembled for the purpose of entering into a general organization to increase the rates of remuneration. A constitution was read, and a Committee of five appointed to examine and report upon it at a mass meeting to be held on Tuesday evening. The proceedings of the meeting were conducted principally in the German language.

ACCIDENTS.—THOMAS MEAGHER, while on the roof of No. 12 Mulberry-street, a four-story building, yesterday afternoon, slipped and fell to the ground. He was not instantly killed, but his injuries are of such a character that he will not probably survive. A boy named THOMAS JONES had one of his wrists run over by a car of the Sixth-avenue Railroad, in Canal-street near Wooster, yesterday afternoon. He was taken to the Hospital, and a portion of the arm was amputated.

SEIZURE OF UNHEALTHY MEAT.—Mr. FORDHAM, the clerk of Fulton Market, on Saturday seized a large quantity of villainous veal which had been introduced by dealers for sale. It was perfectly green, the bones being little else than gristle. Mr. FORDHAM says a large quantity of such trash is surreptitiously thrown into the various markets, and much sickness is caused by the sale of it to persons who are not acquainted with its unhealthy character.

FEMALE PICKPOCKETS.—ELIZA CUNNINGHAM and CATHARINE REARDON were arrested on Saturday, for picking the pocket of DORATHEA STINSON of a wallet containing $12, while she was standing in the Fourth avenue. The operation was witnessed by Officer EUSTACE, who arrested the woman and recovered the wallet. The prisoners were committed for trial by Justice OSBORN.

DEATH OF MRS. CARROLL.—Mrs. ANNA CARROLL, of No. 276 Houston-street, reported as having been accidentally shot by her son on the night of the 11th inst., died yesterday morning from her injuries. The accident occurred, it will be remembered, while her son was loading his pistol for the purpose of killing rats. An inquest will be held by Coroner JACKMAN to-day.

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—An attempt was made on Saturday night to put in circulation a large number of counterfeit $5 bills on the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank of Somers, New-York. Several arrests were made by the police, of parties who had succeeded in passing the bills in the up-town stores.

NEW-YORK HOSPITAL.—During the past week, 43 persons were admitted to the New-York Hospital: 4 died; 47 were discharged, and 237 remained at the close of the week,—a reduction of 8 from the previous report.

Police Reports.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT BY ROWDIES.—William Hagan, while passing through Water-street, near Roosevelt, about 7 o'clock last evening, encountered about half a dozen rowdies, who at once set upon Hagan, who had offered them no provocation. He was felled to the ground by a blow on the head, which inflicted a serious wound, from which it is thought he cannot recover. From the man's statement it appears he had been to a dance-house in Water-street, where he tarried a short time, and on leaving was assailed as above stated. Policemen Rode and Lawrence, of the Fourth Precinct, heard the cries of Hagan when he was assaulted, and rushed to the spot and arrested John Pack on suspicion of being in company with the rowdies who committed the assault. The others made good their escape. Hagan's wound was dressed at the Station-house. He lives in Columbia-street, Brooklyn, and has a large family.

A LOSING GAME.—Some six weeks ago Mr. Walter McDonald saw two burglars emerge from the store of Mr. Sykes, No. 198 Fulton-street, with a package of goods, which they placed in a wagon and drove off at a rapid pace. He pursued them and caught the horse by the head, when the burglars jumped from the wagon and ran off. The horse and wagon were handed over to the Property Clerk of the Police Department, in whose possession they have since remained awaiting a claimant. On Saturday two men giving their names as James McGea and Hall Ritter appeared at the Deputy Superintendent's Office and laid claim to the property. Mr. McDonald was sent for, and identified the men as the burglars whom he pursued, and they were taken before the City Hall Police Court and committed for examination.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY IN THE DAY TIME.—Highwaymen usually do their work at night, but on Thursday afternoon there occurred an exception to the ordinary rule. As Michael Walkule, of No. 385 Ninth-avenue, was walking through Varick-street, near Dominick, he was suddenly attacked by two men, knocked down and his gold watch and chain, valued at $200, stolen. The work was quickly done and the bold rascals quickly disappeared. Subsequently an Irish coachman, named George Joint, was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery, the watch being found in his possession. He was committed to Jefferson Market Prison to await further examination.

ALLEGED SEDUCTION.—Hermann Delleinger, a clerk in Bode's liquor store, in Fulton-street, was arrested on Friday, on a charge of seduction. The complainant is Miss Catharine R. Dulje, a young and good-looking German girl. She says that the accused seduced her under promise of marriage, and then refused to fulfill his engagement. Justice KELLY committed Dulleinger to prison to answer the charge.

ARREST FOR OPENING LETTERS.—Mr. John W. Lawson lodged a complaint before Justice OSBORN on Saturday, against George Holbrook, for opening a letter directed to the complainant from a merchant in Providence. The letter contained an order for goods, which Holbrook proceeded to fill, thereby defrauding the complainant out of the commission. The accused was arrested and held to bail to answer.

ARREST.—The Harbor Police boat No. 7 arrested three of the crew of the ship Liverpool, arrived yesterday from London, for stealing from the cargo goods amounting in value to $100. They were locked up for examination.

SUICIDE BY TAKING ARSENIC.—Coroner O'Keefe held an inquest on Saturday at No. 646 Water-street upon the body of Bridget Murphy, a native of Ireland, 30 years of age, who committed suicide by taking a dose of arsenic. No cause was assigned for the act.

Funeral of Mike Walsh.

The funeral services of MIKE WALSH took place at his late residence, No. 208 West Twenty-first-street, at 2 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, and his body, escorted by a long procession of citizens in carriages and on foot, was conveyed to Greenwood, where it was interred. Long before the appointed hour, the crowd began to gather in the vicinity of the house, and the relatives and friends of Mr. WALSH assembled. Policemen of the Sixteenth Precinct guarded the door, and with some difficulty restrained the people who elbowed each other in their efforts to obtain eligible positions. Sergeant BREVOORT, Chief Aid of the General Superintendent, had charge of the Police arrangements. Every moment the concourse became greater; the house, which is a small two-story brick building, near the Eighth-avenue, was full, and the crowd outside was estimated at five thousand persons. Among these who early entered the house was TOM HYER, who was intimate with Mr. WALSH, and was with him at the Hone House the night of his death.

The coffin, with the lid partially removed, was placed in the hall. It was of rosewood, lined with satin, with silver inscription plate, richly carved, and silver-headed nails. On the plate was the name of Mr. WALSH, the date of his death, and his age (38 years). The Rev. Dr. CALEB CLAPP, of the (Episcopal) Church of the Nativity, in Avenue C, was the officiating clergyman. Standing on the stairs, he read the burial service and offered prayer. The ceremony was soon performed, and then the pall-bearers entered and, after taking a last look at the face of the dead, passed through the house. The following were the pall-bearers: James B. O'Keefe, Hon. Benjamin Ray, Justice Steers, George Wilkes, Colonel Walters, Justice Connolly, Edward Reynolds, Fernando Wood, James T. Brady, James Haley, Hon. John Cochrane, Amor J. Williamson, Judge Evans, Justice Welsh, Ex-Alderman William Wilson and John Anderson. The widow and two children—a son about 21 years of age, and a daughter a few years younger, next, took an affectionate leave of the remains.

The appearance of the body was very natural. It was wrapped in a shroud of white crape, turned over with white satin, and around the neck a white cravat was folded. After the relatives and near friends of Mr. WALSH had in turn viewed the body, the pall-bearers bore the coffin out to the sidewalk, and those of the crowd who desired to see the deceased, were invited to come forward. For nearly half an hour the crowd was passing the coffin one by one, and then the lid was fastened upon it and was placed in the hearse. At 3 o'clock the procession started. The empty carriages of the pall-bearers preceded the hearse, while the pall-bearers marched on either side. Behind it came a large number of the friends of the deceased marching five and six abreast, and a long cortége of carriages followed. There were forty-one carriages in the procession. They proceeded up Twenty-first to Broadway, and down Broadway to the Hamilton Ferry. Along the whole route crowds of spectators gathered. The remains were conveyed to Greenwood for interment.

ARREST ON SUSPICION OF BEING CONCERNED IN THE DEATH OF MR. WALSH.

A peddler, named BERNARD MCGAFFNEY, was arrested on Saturday by Officers CONLAN and GILMORE, on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery and homicide of MIKE WALSH on Wednesday night. The prisoner was seen early Thursday morning in the vicinity of the place where the body was found, and he is known to the Police as a bad customer. Mr. KNAPP, who testified at the Coroner's Inquest to having heard the cry of murder and seen two men running away from the spot, says that MCGAFFNEY resembles one of the men whom he saw. The prisoner was committed for further examination.

New-York an Orderly City!—When?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

One of the most suggestive statements in the eminently-suggestive document on the Sunday Liquor traffic, lately issued, is that relating to the peaceful condition of the City previous to the repeal of the Sunday ordinances:

"It is an instructive fact in our municipal history," say the Sabbath Committee, "that down to the period of the repeal, in 1834, of the ordinances for the protection of the Sabbath, and those prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors on that day, no necessity existed for a Sunday Police. The City governed itself on the Lord's Day, as long as Sunday dram-shops were closed; but soon after the demoralizing influence of the Sunday liquor-traffic was thus extended, crime and disorder began to increase; until, in 1839, it became necessary to pass an ordinance authorizing the appointment of Sunday officers. (See Ordinances for 1839, chap. 36, Title II.) The sluices of immorality had been thrown open—we hope unwittingly—and the current of iniquity has rolled on with increasing volume to the present day; when, with a full force of police on duty, as on other days, the Sabbath has become the carnival of evil-doers; and the arrests for crime and disorder uniformly exceed those of any other day of the week."

Yet, with such a bitter experience of a quarter of a century, we find the "Satanic Press" advocating still broader license to appetite and folly. Granting all the evils that have been entailed by the Sunday curse—it is somewhat difficult to deny official records and universal observation—what remedy do these sapient gentlemen propose? Nothing less than the unlimited increase of the causes of immorality and disorder: "Open the theatres and other public amusements on Sunday," say they, "and let all the railroads and steamboats be free to convey the people to the numerous delightful spots which surround New-York within twenty miles, and no law will be wanted to shut up the grog-shops." That is, if you would arrest the demoralization and crime demonstrably associated with the Sunday liquor traffic, add some more theatres to the dozen already open and crowded every Sunday, and extend the area of vice over the suburbs "within twenty miles," and destroy the last vestige of respect for the day of rest and worship! Then the millennium of the Sunday Satanic Press will come! Then "these ignorant and impudent Pharisees", who look so demure on the seventh day, but are the most notorious in the community for scandal and slander, and lying and cheating, and robbing and stealing, and breaking almost every commandment in the decalogue on the other six days of the week," will take lessons in manners and morals of the soi-disant "Clergyman" who does the dirty Sunday work of the Sunday Herald and the Sunday Mercury.

We believe there is enough of virtue and self-respect left in this community to frown down the paid libellers of self-sacrificing philanthropists, and the supporters of an illegal and most destructive business. And we are not without hope that the exposure lately made of the immeasurable evils of the Sunday liquor traffic will lead to successful measures for its suppression. The Sabbath Committee have done their duty ably and fearlessly; if the people and the Police will do theirs, we may again hope for the time when the City will "govern itself on Sunday." ORDER.

One Way to Swindle the City—Fraudulent Sale of a Wharf.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

On the 21st of September last, the lease for five years of the Pier and North Battery at the foot of Hubert-street, for several years leased and occupied by the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company, was sold at auction on the premises in behalf of the City, by Mr. MILLER, auctioneer. There was an attendance of numerous parties desirous to purchase, the competition being spirited. After a brief and hurried offering, the lease was struck down to Capt. ALEXANDER H. SHULTZ, who stated that he acted in behalf of his nephew, B. LLOYD JONES, for $4,500. No little dissatisfaction was expressed by other bidders, who alleged that they were taken by surprise. One or more of them had also bid $4,500, and several were ready to go two or three thousand dollars higher. Indeed there is reason to believe that the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company would have bid as high as $10,000 rather than lose possession of the premises, which they use for landing coal. None of the other bidders heard the bid of SHULTZ, and there were doubts whether he made an audible bid at all.

The auctioneer was strongly urged by several parties present to put up the lease again, for the reason that another party (Captain BYRNE) had bid the same sum ($4,500) at which the lease was struck off to SHULTZ, and on the further ground that more than one were willing to go higher. But he obstinately refused. Complaints were openly made of hurry and unfairness, to which no attention was given. Several affidavits have since been made and printed by persons who attended the sale, showing the remarkable character of the transaction. Mr. GEORGE BYRNE swears that he bid $4,500; that he heard no bid from Captain SHULTZ; that he stood in front of the auctioneer and quite near him, who, he is satisfied, heard his bid, and that almost instantly the lease was struck off to SHULTZ. Mr. BYRNE supposed that the bid was his, and so claimed, but learned to his surprise that SHULTZ was regarded by the auctioneer as the successful party. He and several other persons immediately proposed that the lease should be set up again, declaring their readiness to bid higher, alleging that they were taken by surprise, and charging unfairness; but it was of no avail. Among those who have made the affidavits referred to are Captain EDWARD VAN WART, JAMES SHINDLER, ALFRED BARMORE, WILLIAM RADFORD, GEORGE T. OLYPHANT, OWEN DENNETT and JOHN ENDICOTT. There can be no doubt that the City has lost four or five thousand dollars in this transaction. Perhaps it might not be worth while to trouble you and the public with this statement, were it not that this is a representative case, a specimen of hundreds, in which the City Exchequer is made to minister to individual cupidity, by contrivances which are familiar to the dishonest and unscrupulous. Is there no way to right such wrongs? Can an auctioneer sacrifice thousands of dollars belonging to the community, by his arbitrary refusal to permit a free and fair competition? Is the manifest fraud of this transaction beyond remedy? Surely if the Common Council have the public interest at heart, they will again expose the lease of the Hubert-street Pier at auction. A TAX PAYER.

Amusements.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM takes his benefit to-night, when the "Veteran" will be repeated for the fifty-fifth time. No other attraction is offered, or indeed necessary; but we may mention as an established fact that Mr. BROUGHAM never refuses to make a speech when he is asked, and that the knowing ones regard this as the most attractive feature of his benefit.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—Nothing here, or likely to be, except "Our American Cousin."

THEATRE FRANCAIS.—The neat little company at this establishment will appear in three vaudevilles, to-night, called "L'Invitation à la Valse," "Une Tigre du Bengale," and "La Corde Sensible."

BROADWAY THEATRE.—The very successful Shakespearean revival of "Antony and Cleopatra" is still the feature. A good after-piece is also given.

BOWERY THEATRE.—An entirely new and original Revolutionary drama, written expressly for this Theatre by JOHN BROUGHAM, and called "The Miller of New-Jersey, or the Prison Hulk," will be produced here to-night for the first time. This is rare news. All the prominent members of the company are in the cast.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—To-night is set apart for a grand complimentary benefit to Mr. G. H. BEANE, and an unusually attractive bill is provided. It will be found in another column.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—Two dramas will be played here every evening during the week, "Gwynneth Vaughan" and "Paddy Carey."

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—The celebrated equestrienne, Mme. TOURNAIRE, has been added to Messrs. NIXONS' troupe, and will appear to-night in some of her most celebrated scenes. The menagerie of trained animals is still here.

WOOD'S MINSTRELS.—The Ethiopian pantomime called the "Mystic Spell" is still the attraction here. It is preceded by the usual excellent variety of entertainments.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

SERVED RIGHT.—Brooklynites, with ladies, are frequently annoyed, while riding from some of the up-town places of amusement in New-York to Fulton Ferry, by a species of young men designated "fast," who, presuming upon the fact that there are several of them together, use language highly unbecoming, in the presence of ladies at least, if not directly insulting. A case occurred on Saturday night last, which should be a warning to this class. A well-known citizen, accompanied by two ladies, took an omnibus on Broadway for Fulton Ferry. Soon after two young men, one in business for himself and the other a clerk, got in. They behaved boisterously, and were particularly overbearing to the gentleman with the ladies referred to. He was rudely ordered to pass up money to pay fare, and when he returned the change, the query was made in a brusque manner, "Is that change right?" This and several other annoyances occurred before reaching the Ferry. When the omnibus stopped at the ferry-house, the fast young men, who were sitting near the door manifested no disposition to get out, and the gentleman with the ladies asked permission to pass. The fellow who had manifested so much insolence before made a vulgar remark in reply, when a well-deserved and well-directed blow on the side of the head laid him insensible upon the sidewalk.

CITY MORTALITY.—There were 92 deaths reported to Dr. BOYD, Health Officer, last week, classified as follows: Men, 22; women, 14; adults, 36 children, 56; males, 56; females, 36; boys, 34; girls 22. Diseases—Abscess of brain, Bright's disease of the kidneys, bleeding from bowels, bronchitis, burned, cancer in stomach, debility, (adult,) dropsy, congestive fever, disease of the heart, inflammation of stomach, marasmus, (infantile,) palsy, scrofula, still-born, teething—one each—asthma, congestion of the brain, debility, (infantile,) dropsy in the head, epilepsy, typhus fever, whooping-cough, inflammation of the brain, inflammation of the liver, old age, premature birth—two each—scarlet fever, inflammation of bowels, inflammation of lungs—four each—congestion of lungs, croup—five each—convulsions, 7; small-pox, 8; consumption, 15. Ages—30 were under 1 year; 57 under 20; 3 between 80 and 90, and 13 over 50. Nationality—England, 3; Germany, 4; Ireland, 14; Italy, 1; Prussia, 1; United States, 69.

PUBLIC MEETING.—The third of a series of public meetings held to take action against the Water and Sewerage bills now before the Legislature, was held in the City Hall, Saturday evening last. In the absence of ex-Alderman BARNARD, the Chairman, on motion of ex-Alderman DAYTON, JONATHAN ROGERS was called to the Chair. JASPER W. GILBERT, Esq., Counsel for the People's Committee, reported the proceedings before the Committee on Towns and Villages at Albany, which have heretofore been published. Alderman BACKHOUSE also addressed the meeting, mainly to show that all of the respectability of the City was not embodied in the Board of Water Commissioners. Ex-Alderman DAYTON followed, in a similar view. The meeting, which was thinly attended, finally adjourned to Tuesday evening next.

RAISING THE NEW BELL—ALMOST AN ACCIDENT.—The new bell for the City Hall was raised Saturday afternoon. Just as the bell had reached the entrance of the belfry, and while upon the "skids" leading from the eaves of the building directly under the derrick to the belfry, it was found that the bell could not be got into place without moving it to one side, and also that the blocks would come together before the bell could be got off the "skids." The man driving the horse attached to the windlass was ordered to stop, which order he did not obey until one of the blocks by which the bell was being raised was broken. Had he moved the arm of the windlass one foot further, the bell would have become detached and nothing could have prevented its falling to the ground.

THE GALE.—Considerable damage was done to property by the gale on Friday night last. The frame of a two story house on Prospect Hill was blown down, and a small frame building in Bedford suffered the same fate. A number of unfinished brick houses in the Ninth and Eleventh Wards were slightly damaged. A large number of signs and awnings in different parts of the city were blown down, and several persons narrowly escaped with their lives.

ALMOST A ROW.—Late Thursday night a military company crossed the Fulton Ferry to New-York, and refused to pay toll. When pay was demanded they threatened to annihilate the officers at the ferry and the Ferry Company also. The captain of the company claims that under a State law all military bodies when out in obedience to a law of the State, as he claims they were on that day, can pass all ferries and toll-gates free.

ACCIDENT.—A man named BARNEY DUFFY, residing at No. 95 Wyckoff-street, was thrown from a wagon on Fulton-avenue, Saturday night, and then was run over by a city railroad car, by which he had one leg crushed, and was otherwise seriously injured. He was taken to his residence by Officers HARTSHORN and CORWIN of the First Precinct.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—Mr. and Mrs. ISAAC YORK were arrested by the Second Precinct Police Saturday night, for passing counterfeit $5 bills on the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank of Somers, N. J. They were committed to prison.

NORTH SIDE RAILROAD.—A meeting was held in Oyster Bay a few days ago, "for the building of a North Side Railroad, or extending the Flushing road to that village."

PASTORAL.—The Rev. IRA C. BOICE has taken charge of the society worshipping in the Reformed Dutch Church, North Sixth-street, Eastern District.

"Cristadoro's Hair Dye."
THE QUESTION SETTLED FOR EVER!
NO MORE POISONOUS HAIR DYES!

All honor to the Press. The newspapers from Maine to Georgia have settled the question between the poisonous hair dyes and the pure, wholesome and unfailing preparation of CRISTADORO, No. 6 Astor House, New York, by publishing in their editorial columns the following unanswerable statement of Dr. James R. Chilton, who, by universal admission, stands in the front rank of our analytical and consulting chemists:

[COPY.]

I hereby certify that I have made a thorough analysis of Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye and find that it does not contain any preparation of lead whatever, or any other substance that would prove injurious to the health of persons using it in the manner directed for the purpose of dyeing the hair. HUTCHINGS' LIFE EXHILARANT.
What is your complaint? Are you dyspeptic, feeble in body, depressed in mind, nervous, irritable, full of misgivings and gloomy anticipations, tormented by pains and aches which no ordinary medicines will reach or allay? What you want is invigoration. Nature requires to be reinforced. Your physical powers are torpid, and disease, having no antagonist to contend with, is gradually sapping and undermining the very foundations of your life. Unless you can revive the exhausted energies of your system, you cannot be cured. Stimulants won't do; they fill the brain with exciting gases, and the reaction is terrible. A medicine like HUTCHINGS' EXHILARANT—or rather that medicine, for there is no other like it—is your only safety. It arrests the decay of the animal forces; it brings up the constitution from the lowest point of depression to the full vigor of health; it impregnates the blood with new vitality; it regulates the liver; strengthens the stomach; gives firmness to the nerves; puts the entire physique in good working order. Take it, and we guarantee to you a new lease of life and the capacity to enjoy it. Is not the experiment worth a trial? Life and Death are in the balance. Choose between them. Price $1 per bottle, or $5 for six. Principal dépôt, No. 165 Chambers st.; also sold at the corner of Broadway and 14th-st., New-York; in Brooklyn by Mrs. Hayes.

Dr. JEFFRIES' ANTIDOTE, a specific mixture for the cure of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, and similar diseases. It makes a speedy cure without the least restriction of diet, drink, exposure or change in application to business. Further, the disease cannot be contracted if a dose of the antidote is taken when exposed. Repeated experiments and long experience have proved that it will radically cure any case which can be produced. This desirable result is obtained in from two to ten days; and as it neither creates nausea nor offends the palate, and renders unnecessary all deviation in diet, or interruption to usual pursuits, sound sleep or healthy digestion, the disease is thus removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure. Its ingredients are entirely vegetable, and no injurious effect, either constitutionally or locally, can be caused by its use. Price $1 per bottle. C. H. RING, General Agent, No. 178 Broadway, New-York; Redding, Boston; Jennison, Albany; Callender, Philadelphia. Also, for sale as above, Ring's celebrated Rose Wash; price 25 cents.

DR. HUNTER—NO 3 DIVISION-ST., PERFORMS THE GREATEST CURES EVER MADE.
THE ONLY SECURITY AGAINST HUMBUGS AND THE EFFECTS OF DISEASES
IS TO APPLY TO HIS OLD
DISPENSARY, NO. 3 DIVISION ST., NEW-YORK,
ESTABLISHED IN 1834.

Dr. HUNTER, No. 3 Division-st., offers to the public the only reliable remedy known in the wide world for the permanent cure and removal of every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of venereal disease, which is the genuine HUNTER'S RED DROP, made from the original recipe, in the possession of Dr. HUNTER and not known by any other person living except Dr. HUNTER, at No. 3 Division-st., one door from the Bowery, all the assertions of the many poisonous quacks to the contrary notwithstanding. Dr. H. has prepared every vial of this celebrated medicine with his own hands that has ever been offered for sale for the last thirty years, and has never intrusted any living person with the secret; consequently, everything offered for sale at any other place is a libel, a base and wicked counterfeit, got up by some unprincipled wretch that, for the sake of a dollar, would trifle with the lives of his fellow-men.

AFFAIRS AT ALBANY.

Last Day for Introducing Bills—German Savings Bank Killed—The Grinding Committee and Its Operation—Quarantine Removal—The Assembly Canal Appropriation Bill Ordered to its Third Reading in the Senate—The Old Canal Across the Cayuga Marshes to be Kept in Repair—Certificates but no Drafts on the Auditor hereafter when the State is Out of Funds.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, March 19, 1859.

After to-day, both Red Books agree that no bills can be introduced; hence unanimous consent was easily obtained to introduce them throughout the day, and in all some forty new ones were started into the maelstrom. Among them were bills relating to your City's Sinking Fund and debt, to encourage the organization of the militia, to authorize the adjustment of disputed claims on local assessments, and to amend the Life and Health Insurance Company incorporations, by Mr. OPDYKE; one by Mr. LAWRENCE, authorizing a railroad from Forty-second street to Fulton Ferry; one by Mr. BROCKWAY, of Oswego, to enlarge the powers of Judges of the New-York and Brooklyn Courts. Mr. TOMLINSON shoved in eight, of which I will speak more particularly when the prospect of their getting through becomes clear.

Several bills had their third reading. The only one of any interest to citizens was the German Savings Bank, which had passed the Senate. On its final reading it had 59 ayes to 11 noes, Mr. JACOB SMITH having changed his vote for the sake of moving a reconsideration. When the reconsideration was moved, and that the motion be tabled, Mr. OPDYKE rose to a question of order,—that a bill of incorporation could not, if lost, be reconsidered. Turning to the rule he read it,—the Speaker declared the point well taken, Mr. SMITH confessed that he was caught, and the House that it was astounded—the rule probably not having been read since it was first reported. So the German Savings Bank (those who tried and failed to get Mr. JOACHIMSSEN's name inserted voting NAY on its final passage) lost its life just at the hour that it was to have been born into a law, by as clean a cut as a quiet but very earnest man ever made. A great many were sorry, but it was too late. One less.

There was unusual confusion in the House to-day—two topics occupying almost exclusive attention and gathering members in knots on the floor; first the Grinding Committee—was it ably constituted? did anybody own it? would it put through business with promptness? how would it be likely to dispose of the City Railroad bills? In other words, everybody turned in mind how his own little bills would fare in its mill, and each grinder was ruthlessly ground—first with special reference to his fitness to blink or to scrutinize each bill still left unacted on. The prevailing judgment, however, I think, was that the Committee was as honest as the day is long, and would in good conscience strive to perform faithfully the 500 delicate duties rolled upon it,—for to perform them conscientiously is a delicate undertaking, to perform them at all exceedingly laborious. Its business is to select from General Orders bills of all sorts, and report to the House those which a majority of its members agree are proper to send to Select Committees to report complete. On making this report, if the bill has an enemy, caught as he surely will be at a disadvantage, he must move to disagree and to send it to the Committee of the Whole—and on that motion comes the fight. If it carries, it can be renewed in Committee of the Whole. If lost, there is one more chance only—when the Select Committee, which of course will be a nursing Committee, reports it for the third reading, but a motion to recommit with instructions, is only narrowly debatable—and not upon the merits of the subject of the bill. So for the remainder of the session, tactics and close watching are essential if one would not have his eye-teeth plucked out. An anxious member of the lobby, who summons his friend from the floor to urge greater haste, may find to his sorrow that while he held him by the button-hole, his own pet bill was incontinently choked to death by an adverse report.

The Quarantine debate of the night before absorbed all the attention that was left over from this fresher topic. How the original Removal bill came to pass—by two to one—when, within forty-eight hours before, the substitute seemed to meet far better the sense of the House, was amply discussed; how suddenly some were converted from the substitute; how some who were openly pledged for it happened to be out when the yeas and nays were taken; how the lobby swarmed in and about, and how some, by preferring to amend the original bill by incorporating the principles of the substitute into it in the shape of amendments, found themselves shut off from the opportunity of recording themselves for these amendments by some very quick rulings on the part of Mr. CONKLING. For instance, in Committee of the Whole, that portion of the substitute which shut off the Quarantine from Coney Island was adopted by a large majority; but in the House, the motion to restore the original first section was decided carried, without a count. The Speaker being sick in his bed, the Chair was temporarily occupied by Mr. CONKLING. Mr. ANDRUS, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. LAWRENCE and others protested that the motion was lost, and that the decision was outrageous, but the Chair had decided. Mr. LAWRENCE appealed from the decision, urging that a count was called for, feeling evidently that upon so important a matter many would be placed in a false position if not allowed a fair opportunity to define it. It was in vain, however. Then it was discovered that many of those who, out of courtesy to the author of the original bill, followed the lead of Mr. TOMLINSON—who, after making a most eloquent speech in favor of the principles of the substitute still voted against it, meaning to accept most of them in the shape of amendments—had recorded themselves on the journal precisely as they chose not to be. Of the Kings and Queens County men, those who voted for the bill that permits the Quarantine hospitals to be placed on Coney Island or Barren Island, were Messrs. Lawrence, Wilson, Meserole, Moore and Gardner. Yet every one of them intended to be recorded on the other side. The vote on substituting the seventh section of the substitute for the seventh section of CHRISTIE's bill stood ayes 24, nays 45. The ayes voted to give the sale of the Castleton property to the Quarantine Commissioners; they to survey into parcels, to map, and advertise it; to appraise each lot, and on the public auction to permit no lot to be sold below its appraised value; the nays voted to leave the whole matter to the discretion of the Governor. The ayes were Messrs Andrus, Colt, Coleman, Fuller, Gardner, Grant, Hutchinson, Johnson, McLeod, Meeks, Payne, Plato, Powell, Ranney, Reilly, Tomlinson, Tuthill, Van Cortlandt, Van Horn, Van Volkenburgh, Warner and Wiggins—of whom six are Democrats and eighteen Republicans. The nays were Messrs. Aylworth Batcheller, Bliss, Boughton, Bowen, Buffington Chamberlain, Christie, Clark, Conkling, Cornelius, Creble, Farnum, Filkins, H. K. Graves, Green, Hall, King, Ladew, Lockhart, Longenhelt, L. R. Lyon, Mackin, Miller, Moore, Moulton, G. B. Palmer, Pelton, Pierce, Pond, Scholefield, See, Shaw, C. S. Spencer, Suydam, Sweeney, C. Thomas, D. Thomas Thompson, Wiley, Wilson and Young; (seven Democrats.)

The five-eighth mill tax, for Canal Enlargement, was the subject of a long and earnest debate in the Senate. On coming out of the Committee of the Whole, Mr. DIVEN renewed the motion that the Canal Commissioners shall make no more drafts upon the Auditor until the receipt of notice that there is money for their payment. Agreed to—yeas, 14; nays, 10, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Boardman, Burhans, Darling, Diven, Ely, Johnson, Mather, Pratt, Spinola, Truman O. B. Wheeler, W. A. Wheeler, John D. Willard, Williams,

NAYS—Messrs. Ames, Foote, Halsted, Hubbell, Loveland, Noxon, Paterson, Prosser, Schell, J. A. Willard.

Mr. MATHER asked and obtained consent to move to amend by adding the following: "But nothing in this act shall prevent the Canal Commissioners or Engineer in charge from certifying the amount due the contractor for work done and material furnished previous to the passage of this act." The amendment was adopted.

Mr. PATERSON renewed his amendment to keep in repair, in the discretion of the Canal Commissioners, the old line Canal across the Cayuga marshes—no money to be expended without consent of the Canal Board. This was carried, Ayes 12, Nays 11—the Democrats having vigorously opposed the proposition in debate. The bill thus amended since it came from the Assembly was ordered to a third reading.

The importance that is attached to the proposition embraced in the amendment offered by Senator PATERSON, and adopted, may be inferred from the well-argued points of the following Petition, copies of which, largely signed, are expected to pour in upon the coming Legislature.

"The undersigned tax-paying citizens of the —— of ——, and interested in the commerce of the Erie Canal, beg leave respectfully to state:

That the new line of Canal across the Cayuga marshes, nearly five miles long, is constructed mainly by heavy embankments twelve feet high, and remote from any supply of materials necessary for repairs. It is exposed through nearly all its length to inundations from the Cayuga Lake and other waters, and to every other injury to which heavy unprotected earthwork is liable. It is to be loaded, immediately after its completion next Winter, with a heavy volume of water.

Under these circumstances, it is very desirable and important to preserve, if possible, the existing channel through the marshes (lying below their surface), at least long enough to test the strength and the safety of the new work. This can be done, and the old channel deepened to seven feet, at a cost not exceeding $20,000, as was officially stated by Mr. BENPERT, the resident engineer in charge of the section, and who is as well informed of the facts as any canal officer of the State. Other experienced and eminent engineers, now or formerly in the service of the State, express the opinion that, as a prudential measure, the existing channel ought to be deepened and maintained.

A breach in the new work would probably interrupt the navigation of the Canal for several weeks. Not to advert to the pecuniary cost of repairing the work, such a breach would most seriously affect the commerce and revenue of the State, and permanently injure the character of the Canal as a safe and reliable channel of trade. The injury would be widespread and enduring. It could hardly be measured in money, but would certainly amount to a very large sum. All this evil, and there is surely a possibility, if not a probability, of its occurrence, can be prevented, simply by maintaining and deepening the present channel, at the moderate cost above stated.

The State should preserve the existing channel for the same prudential reason which leads every intelligent owner of a building or a vessel to insure it from fire or wreck.

The same policy should be pursued in preserving this channel which was recently adopted in introducing stop-gates at the heavy embankments at Irondequoit and at Holly. Those structures were not intended for any present use, but solely to guard against the possible contingency of a breach, which, at those localities, like that on the marshes, would prove peculiarly injurious and destructive. Very probably they may never be used, but they will prove invaluable in case the apprehended contingency should chance to occur. The State cannot afford to run a risk which it can so cheaply guard against.

The precaution of maintaining this channel through the marshes will be useful, not only for its positive security, but in imparting to business men, employing the Canal, the requisite feeling of security. The undersigned are confident that the whole commercial community from New-York to Buffalo, are unanimous in desiring the State to maintain and deepen the present channel through the marshes." GLAUCUS.

By Mr. SPINOLA, to incorporate the New-York Railroad and Steamboat Accident Company.

By Mr. ELY, to amend the Life Insurance act.

By Mr. FOOTE, to amend the bill authorizing the sale of the State Arsenal.

The Five-eighths Mill Tax bill to provide means for the completion of the Canals, was gone through with.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Saturday, March 19.

Mr. HUBBELL moved for information from the Warden of Sing Sing Prison as to contracts, price of labor, &c.

Mr. CONKLING called up the concurrent resolutions to reorganize the State Judiciary, and they were adopted—81 to 3.

The bill to repeal the international charter was reported for consideration of the House.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By Mr. CONKLING, to amend the act creating a commission to examine the Treasurer's and other State officers' accounts. It terminates the official existence of the present Commissioners, and gives the appointment of a new commission to the Governor and Senate.

By Mr. BROCKWAY, to enlarge the powers of the Judges in the several Courts in New-York and Brooklyn. It authorizes the Judges, if in their judgment and the judgment of the Prosecuting Attorney, the ends of justice will be promoted to remand State Prison convicts back to jail for the purpose of enlisting in sea service, of not less than one year, in a whaler, merchant-vessel or man-of-war, the convict to leave a half-pay ticket for his wife, children or parents, if he has any.

By Mr. OPDYKE, relative to the Sinking Fund to pay the interest of the debt of New-York City. It authorizes the Commissioners of the Fund to transfer $2,579,535, being the surplus of the Sinking Fund on the 1st of January last, and all the surplus annually hereafter to the Sinking Fund for the redemption of the City debt.

By Mr. OPDYKE, to encourage the organization of the militia. It authorizes the organization of eight companies into regiments, and two regiments into a brigade, and provides that any regiment with 800 men may be organized into a brigade.

By Mr. OPDYKE, to authorize the adjustment of disputed or irregular claims for expenses for local improvements in New-York City. It provides for a just assessment when, by error or otherwise, they are illegal or irregular.

By Mr. OPDYKE, to authorize the formation of companies to insure the fidelity of persons holding places of trust.

Also to empower the Mayor and Corporation of New-York to supply the citizens with gas, and make rules and regulations respecting the same.

Also to empower the Mayor and Commonalty to insure buildings in New-York against fire, and make regulations respecting the same, so as to decrease the cost of insurance.

Also to regulate appeals.

Also to facilitate the collection of small debts.

MONDAY, March 21—A. M.

The latest Foreign news made public here on Saturday is by screw steamer Weser to Sunday, March 6, from Cork, including telegraphic advices from both London and Paris to the previous Saturday afternoon, March 5. The mails by the Asia, on the other hand, delivered also on Saturday, are from London to Friday P. M., March 4, and from Paris to Thursday P. M., March 3. The intervening political events and the change in the Funds were highly important, and go far to qualify the tone of some of the mercantile letters which refer to the Italian difficulty as still affecting financial confidence, and in some measure restraining the otherwise healthy movements of trade. The French Funds, when these letters were written, stood 67.45, and the English 95½@95⅝. On the appearance of the official note in the Moniteur, on Saturday, the former advanced rapidly and closed very firm at 69 for money and 69.10 for the account, and the latter left off in London 95⅞@95⅞. These facts bear out the favorable construction which from the telegraphic view was placed upon the news by most parties in Wall-street. The sales of Cotton at Liverpool on Saturday were 10,000 bales, at very full prices; and we hear of private quotations for the descriptions middling and upward a sixteenth or an eighth higher than the circulars. The export of Cotton Goods from the Kingdom during the month of January were by far the heaviest of the three years from 1856, being equal to $18,650,000, against $13,505,000 in 1858, and $14,970,000, in January, (before the crisis,) in 1857. The aggregate exports of the Kingdom show a total of $47,965,000 in January, 1859, against $36,105,000 last year, and $45,290,000 the year before. The chief improvement in the export of Cotton Goods is noted in the India trade, but the general returns also show symptoms of revival in American orders. The Linen, Metal and Woolen items show almost equal to the large movement before the crisis. Trade at Manchester continues surprisingly active, and every feature in the present accounts, except the remote contingency of a general war upon the Continent, seem to favor the price and demand for Cotton. In the London Discount market Money was easy, and the extra preparations for mercantile engagements, incident to the 4th of every month, were readily made at from 2 to 2½ ℘ cent., the latter being the Bank of England rate, where the line of private securities (or discounts) increased $2,630,000, while the Bullion, owing to the favorable ruling of the Continental Exchanges, remained within $340,000, or £68,016, of the previous return—the present total being equal in Federal value to $99,000,000. The notes of circulation, secured in the Issue Department of the establishment, amount to $167,965,000, of which $64,920,000 remain unemployed. It is stated in a London letter that the increased profitable employment of labor is rapidly swelling the Savings deposits, and these being guaranteed by the Government, were being invested in Consols at the rate of $100,000,000 a day, the whole addition within the Winter months being equivalent to five million dollars in London alone. The same letter adds, in regard to reliable American Securities, that while they might temporarily decline with the other Funds, on the first outbreak of a Continental war, should that calamity occur, the ultimate result would be very different. To this point another authority, Mr. E. F. SATTERTHWAITE, Broker in American stocks, writes:

"We have had a very firm market for American Securities during the past week. Political anxieties both at home and abroad are inducing capitalists to invest in the safest and soundest class, where a regular income can be depended upon, and where there is entire freedom from the continued embroilment in which European nations are, from time to time, involved. Since our last Consols have fluctuated from 95⅛ to 95½, closing 95⅝ to ⅝ for money and account. Money continues plentiful at 2¼ ℘ cent. United States 5 ℘ cent., 1874, have been taken in moderate quantities at 94, and Pennsylvania Stock at 82 to 83. In Erie Bonds and Michigan Central not much business has been done, but neither of them are freely offering for sale. Illinois Free Land Bonds are in demand at 81½; in Construction Bonds a large business has been done about 80, they close sellers so; the shares are steady at 36½ to 35½—between these prices there are buyers for all that come to market."

The latest advices from Washington authorize the conclusion that no extra session of Congress will be convened by the President. The probabilities have been against it ever since the adjournment on the 4th inst., notwithstanding the confident assertions of some of the Washington letter writers that the very day in August for such a meeting had been concluded upon in Cabinet council. It now transpires that the old members of the Cabinet are unanimous against an extra session at all, and it is further intimated that the new Postmaster-General is satisfied that he can carry through his Department without it, though not of course without serious embarrassment to the Government in the absence of the usual appropriation act, or great inconvenience to the mail service and its contractors. The latter will no doubt be accommodated as far as practicable by such evidences of Government indebtedness, on the quarterly audit of their accounts, as will enable them to continue the service until the regular meeting of Congress in December. The pay of Postmasters and other incidental expenses of the Department are about covered by the current receipts for postages. The budget of Public Expenditures, exclusive of the Post-office bill which fell between the two Houses of Congress on the 4th inst., amounts, according to the official paper at the seat of Government, for the fiscal year 1859–60, to only $41,000,000. The demands of the Post-office, in gross, will probably be under $20,000,000, as the new head of the Department has already entered upon a course of vigorous retrenchment, which the extravagance and robbing introduced into the service while we had a redundant Treasury now absolutely calls for. There is nothing like the accidental poverty of the Customs Revenue to induce a return to economy and integrity in all the departments of the Public Expenditure, and although there is little prospect of putting the Washington lobby wholly to flight, it seems certain that both the Democratic majority in the Senate and the Opposition control in the next House of Representatives will study, on the eve of another Presidential election, to render their pickings as poor as possible. Should the expenses of the Government be brought within $55,000,000—and there really appears no sound reason why they should exceed $50,000,000—instead of $71,901,000 in 1858, and $64,939,000 in 1857, exclusive of purchases of the Public Debt, the Customs Revenue will not soon come up to the current wants of the Public Service, thus dispensing with all necessity for the creation of further Public Stocks, but will, on the additional improvement and necessary increase (with a growing population) of our Foreign Trade, prove adequate to the payment of the Treasury Bills now temporarily employed, and to the ultimate purchase of the New Stock of 1858–59 long before its maturity.

The Stock Market through the week was firm for the new Federal Stock, steady on all the State Stocks except Californias, but very heavy on the Western Share list, which it will be noticed in the above comparative quotations, are from 1½ to 2 ℘ cent. lower all round than at the close of the previous week. The steady success with which the Bear account has operated against these shares has not only emboldened, in some cases, largely increased contracts for a still further decline, but unsettled the dealings in the Stocks nearer home. Of these, New-York Central, as usual of late, takes the lead in point of activity. The fluctuations of the week up to Friday were equal to about 1 ℘ cent. against the Bull account. On Saturday the sales were over 6,000 shares, without varying the price over ⅛@⅜ ℘ cent., opening at a fraction higher than before the foreign news, say 79½, and closing 79⅛@⅛. Reading was irregular, both in the demand and in the disposition to make new contracts in it. At the close the cash stock stood about ⅜ ℘ cent. lower than on Saturday week. Panama, Hudson, Cumberland and Harlem Preferred were comparatively steady. The demand was more active on Saturday for Pacific Mail, and the buyers took the seller's options at less difference than usual. It closed about 78 cash, as against 79½ the week before, having in the meantime sold down to 76 ℘ cent. Illinois Central Bonds were also in request at 90⅛@90½, and New-York Centrals, Erie mortgages, Hudsons and Harlems were in fair retail demand, and but sparingly offered at the Board The transactions of the week in the new Federal Stock, on speculation and otherwise, were larger than at any time since the award of the 24th January, and the price improved to 104, at which there were sellers at the close, 103⅞ bid. The general market, in the afternoon, left off dull, under the continued pressure to bear the Western shares, notwithstanding which the regular dividend securities were steady in price. The Foreign news, which most of the Brokers construed favorably, and the ease in the market for Money, which was quite as marked as at any time these six weeks, were almost wholly overlooked in the eagerness displayed to put out a few additional thousand shares each of Rock Island, Galena, &c., in the hope of a lower deep to the present depression.

The Foreign Trade at the port of New-York for the past week fell off from the previous fortnight in the Import entries, chiefly in Dry Goods. At the close of the week, however, the entries improved, and the Customs were paid on a large amount of General Merchandise not embraced in our present return. The entries, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, are returned $2,795,700, as against $1,999,044 same week last year. The Export clearances of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods were quite liberal for the season, especially in view of the fact that Breadstuffs here rule in price above nearly all export limits, the total being $1,494,733, as against $1,505,968 same week last year. The Export of Specie, principally in bar Gold by the Cunard steamer on Wednesday, amounts to $870,578, against $933,150 in the same shape received from California on Monday. The Export of the same week last year was $116,114. The Sub-Treasury balance on Saturday afternoon stood $9,046,759, as against $8,677,357 at the close of the previous week. The difference in the Specie movements, altogether, is not important on the Bank reserve, but as the previous average was a declining one, the calculation is that the statement to be made up this afternoon will show a moderate falling off from the last total of $25,530,054. The Discount line will probably be up, as the last average on this part of the movement was a rising one, and some further considerable sums were placed on Government Stock early in the week. The Foreign Exchanges, which were unusually active for the Cunard steamer of Wednesday last, closed quiet at 109⅝@109¾ on London, and f.5.13¾@f.5.12½ on Paris. The rates of Discount, for first-class bills, at Bank and with outside lenders, rule steady at from 5 to 7 ℘ cent., and temporary loans on demand on short notice from 4 to 5 ℘ cent.

The heavy rain during Thursday night has largely increased the water in the collieries, and caused a freshet in the Schuylkill. It was fortunate that the frost was out of the ground, and no snow remaining on our mountains, otherwise there would have been a heavy freshet, which might have caused serious damage to the canal—but so far we have heard of no injury resulting thereto. It will, however, check shipments probably for a week, which is rather desirable than otherwise, so far as the trade is concerned.

The Railroad and Canal Companies have published the tariff of tolls, &c., on coal, until further notice, which are precisely the same as last year."

The London Times on Pennsylvania Credit.

From the Money Column of London Times, March 3.

The financial cynic in search of an honest community must turn to Pennsylvania. This has not been the general impression, but her sons are satisfied on the point, and have caused it to be officially notified to the world. The Governor, Mr. WILLIAM F. PACKER, has just delivered his annual message, and has described her not only as an example to all nations, but as a light even "in the pathway of her sister States." After detailing the satisfactory condition of the public treasury, in which, notwithstanding a number of exceptional payments during the year, there remains a handsome surplus, he reverted to the records of the past, dwelt upon the happiness of a State that possesses "a fame and a credit untarnished," and urged his fellow-citizens still to preserve "that high character for honesty and integrity by which they have ever been distinguished." Pennsylvania has not been as other States, and, without arrogance, her course therefore may be quoted, to use the stern, yet thankful words of Governor PACKER, as an "admonition," and an acknowledgment of "the favors which Providence has so bountifully bestowed upon her." A Governor and a people thus happy in their financial history will be delighted to see its leading facts set before mankind, and half a dozen lines will suffice for the purpose. In 1842 Pennsylvania suspended the payment of her interest on her public debt. In 1843 the Legislature passed a law authorizing the treasurer to pay the dividends by an issue of 6 ℘ cent. stock, redeemable in 1846. This Dividend Stock was generally received by the creditors, but, in its turn, was left without dividends. In 1845, however, the State recovered its prosperity, and a resumption of payment of interest in cash was decided upon. In all this there was nothing for great permanent comment, and, if the case had ended here, the State would fairly have been entitled to indulge in as much glorification about high integrity and untarnished fame as any other debtor, who, after having caused severe suffering and inconvenience from not meeting his engagements when they were due, had ultimately discharged them as soon as he could make it convenient. But Pennsylvania was not content to set up a beacon of this moderate character in the pathway of her sister States. Her creditors were taught to appreciate what was done for them by a little arrangement, which showed that the sovereign people granted it in grace rather than in justice, and that the right of confiscation is one of their inherent privileges, although it would be exerted only on such a scale as would be sufficient for its assertion as a matter of precedent and principle. Accordingly, the Legislature now passed a law, with the approval of the Governor, that every holder of Interest 6 ℘ cent. Stock (for which the faith of the State was pledged, and the great seal of the State was affixed) should surrender it, receiving for the interest due upon it up to that time only 4¾ ℘ cent., instead of 6, and a stock bearing 5 ℘ cent. for the future, thus depriving the holders of nearly 20 ℘ cent. of interest and principal legally and honestly belonging to them. This is the full narrative, and if the sister States regard it with the eyes of Governor PACKER, we may expect to see them striving, by new specimens of financiering, to attain to similar distinction. At a trial in London, yesterday, of two timber brokers, for some adroit operations in warrants, the Court remarked, with dismay and astonishment, that one of the witnesses to character—a man of business—stated that, notwithstanding what had been proved, his opinion of the prisoners was as high as ever. Governor PACKER, in giving a character to the State of Pennsylvania, far outstrips this gentleman. Her transactions have not merely left her fame untarnished, but have raised her to the top of the pedestal of American honor.
